SENATORIAL FIGHT IN STATE ATTRACTS NATION'S INTEREST

Prohibition Angle Focuses Attention On Ohio Vote

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31.—Ohio's senatorial fight is attracting nationwide interest today as one of the most intensive political campaigns in the history of the Buckeye State nears its close.

This widespread interest is due to the fact that the question of repealing the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution is an outstanding issue in the quest for the senatorial toga.

Former Congressman Robert J. Bulkley, of Cleveland, the Democratic nominee for United States senator, has waged an ardent campaign in support of the proposal that the federal prohibition amendment be repealed and that its enabling act—the Volstead Law—be nullified by congressional action.

United States Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch, of Canton, Republican, seeking to retain his office, has repeatedly denounced all efforts to nullify the dry amendment and prohibition laws. He insists that, on the prohibition question, "There should be no backward step."

Bulkley, also, has consistently attacked the new tariff law and the Hoover administration. McCulloch has defended the Smoot-Hawley tariff act as being essential to the best interests of American industry and the welfare of the workers. He vigorously championed the cause of the present national administration.

Vice President Charles Curtis, United States Senator Simeon D. Fess, chairman of the G. O. P. national committee, and other Republican orators of nationwide repute, were sent into Ohio to speak in support of Senator McCulloch, the G. O. P. nominees for congress and the Republican state ticket, headed by Governor Myers Y. Cooper, who seeks re-election.

Bulkley, George White, of Marietta, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, and all other Democratic candidates have been actively supported by former Governors James M. Cox, of Dayton; Vic Donahay, of Columbus; former United States Senator Atlee Pomerene, of Cleveland; former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland; former Congressman Martin L. Davey, of Kent, Democratic candidate for governor two years ago, and many other prominent Ohio Democrats.

Of equal, or even greater, importance to Ohio voters is the gubernatorial contest. Governor Cooper, with vim and vigor, has traveled into practically every section of the state, defending his administration against allegations of extravagance and other misconduct on the part of the Cooper administration buried by the Democrats.

Cooper, also, asks for a second term in order that he may complete his program which includes a new taxation system, improvement of conditions among the state's welfare institutions, and the erection of the new state office building.

White, too, has visited all parts of the Buckeye state, along with the other Democratic candidates for state offices. In his quest for the gubernatorial office, White promises, among other things, to

HIGH SCHOOL YOUTH INJURED IN FIGHT

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31.—Martin Romanoff, 16-year-old high school student was in a hospital here today suffering from a possible fractured skull as the result of a fight at the school yesterday.

Conflicting stories were told to police concerning the affair.

One story was that Romanoff was preparing to rehearse for a Halloween frolic which was given last night when two boys attempted to throw him out of the assembly hall in a friendly scuffle.

The other story was that Romanoff was attacked by two boys who had been named in connection with gasoline robberies near the school. Romanoff was thrown to the concrete floor, striking his head.

NOTED RACE HORSE TRAINER IS DEAD

CLEVELAND, Oct. 31.—Followers of harness racing today mourned the death of Guy M. Lee, noted trainer, who died at his home here of a heart attack.

Lee won national fame for himself thirty years ago as a driver when he captured scores of purses with the pacer Bonnie Boy. Lee served as a racing official at several tracks in the country in recent years.

CAPONE LIEUTENANT IS CAPTURED IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Frank Nitti, "the enforcer," and field director of Scarface Al Capone's gang, was seized in a Berwyn apartment early today by a raiding squad composed of federal operatives and state's attorney's detectives.

Nitti's capture concluded a two months search which has been nationwide.

The gangster's arrest was ordered when a federal grand jury returned a secret true bill indicting him for asserted income tax evasion.

Nitti and a woman who was with him in the well appointed apartment were rushed to the federal building for questioning.

Nitti's capture was second in importance only to that of Al Capone, according to Robert I. Randolph, director of the "secret six" crime fighting committee.

Nitti was wanted for questioning in connection with recent gang atrocities laid to the Capone gang, including the machine gun slaying of Joe Aiello, millionaire alcohol king and enemy of Capone.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Babe Ruth's family consisted of four today. The baseball player late yesterday walked out of court with two adopted daughters after signing legal papers. One of the girls is Dorothy, the adopted daughter of Ruth and his first wife and the other is Julie, the daughter of the present Mrs. Ruth by a former marriage.

VOTE NEXT TUESDAY WILL FALL BEHIND 1928 RECORD VOTE

Important Issues Failed To Bring Registration

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Except in certain sections where there are particularly bitter and savage contests the politicians sitting at the council tables in Washington do not expect to see very heavy voting next Tuesday.

In 1928, under the impetus of the passions aroused in the Hoover-Smith campaign, an all-time record was hung up when nearly 37,000,000 voters marched to the polls and marked their ballots. There will be nothing like that number next week, although a better-than-normal off-year vote is anticipated.

Registration has fallen off sharply in many sections of the country, according to reports drifting into Washington—this despite the popularity and acuteness of the prohibition issue in many states.

New York had Pennsylvania are typical examples.

In New York there is being staged one of the most spectacular gubernatorial battles the state has ever witnessed, with Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidential aspirations in the balance, and the Republicans for the first time advocating repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Yet the registration is described as "way off." This decrease in up-state registration is considered a serious drawback to the chances of Charles H. Tuttle, the Republican candidate for governor, for he must come down to New York with a tremendous majority to offset the majority which Tammany always rolls up for the Democratic candidate in the city.

The center of the revolt is Philadelphia, but notwithstanding this the registration in that great city is said to be nearly 200,000 below normal. If Pinchot wins next Tuesday, it probably will be due to this falling off of registration in Philadelphia, for the vote there will go heavily against him.

The business depression is held generally to blame for the decrease in registration and the apathy of the voters that is apparent in so many states. The vote in an off-year, between presidential elections, always falls away. The decrease next Tuesday from the figures of two years ago is expected to be enormous. If the total vote runs above 28,000,000 most of the political leaders here will be greatly surprised.

Relief Forces Rush To Stricken Area Along Adriatic

ROME, Oct. 31.—With the same machine-like rapidity which enabled Italy's speedy recovery from the disastrous earthquake of several months ago, relief forces were mobilized today in the Adriatic provinces where a new series of temblors yesterday killed more than thirty persons and rendered hundreds homeless.

Twelve hours after the quakes occurred, complete order had been restored throughout most of the stricken districts, with the homeless being cared for in houses and buildings that escaped damage, and the injured treated in hospitals.

Relief work was directed to isolated communities in the mountains.

The new quakes struck a zone on the Adriatic Sea between Ancona and Pesaro. Heavy property damage was done in the provinces of Ancona, Pesaro and Macerata, where hundreds of houses were wrecked or made uninhabitable.

Due to the disruption of telephone and telegraph facilities in the earthquake zone, Italian government officials found difficulty in securing an authentic estimate of the casualties. Until relief forces could reach the isolated mountain towns and repair telegraph lines, a complete checkup was impossible.

First estimates of the death-toll ranged from fifteen to fifty, but official reports indicated they would not exceed thirty. More than 300 were known to have been injured, twenty-three of this number seriously.

The cities of Ancona, Pesaro and Fano were the most important communities in the quake zone, but due to the fact they were on the fringe of the epicentre, they escaped the full force of the temblors. All suffered considerable property damage but comparatively small loss of life.

The town of Senigallia was hit hardest of any municipality. Here twenty-two were known to have been killed and more than 100 injured.

Tragic scenes occurred in Senigallia. Scores of houses and buildings came tumbling into the streets with a terrific roar. Most of the victims lost their lives when struck by falling masonry. Survivors of the disaster at Senigallia said the ground rolled and heaved as if shaken by some giant hand.

It was estimated the quake was felt over an area of 1,000 square miles.

Many beautiful public buildings were destroyed or almost irreparably damaged. Ancona losing its lavish new provincial palace while churches throughout the quake zone were reported badly damaged.

FIRE SHOTS AT ROYAL TRAIN

VIENNA, Oct. 31.—Several shots were fired at the royal train of King Boris and Queen Giovanna at the station of Manole, near Philippopolis, when the train passed through last night, according to a dispatch from Sofia to the Tagblatt today.

Several bullets hit the royal car, according to the report, seriously injuring a military guard.

WORK PLANNED OVER NATION INCREASES STATISTICS SHOW

Actual Construction Is 20 Per Cent Behind 1929.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Contemplated construction work throughout the nation during the first nine months of 1930 shows an increase of more than 5 per cent, or almost $370,000,000 over the same period in 1929.

However, actual contracts for construction work are running at least 20 per cent behind the 1930 nine months period compared to 1929.

This estimate was arrived at today from statistics gathered from 600 reporters throughout the country by F. W. Dodge corporation, statistical service, which furnishes the department of commerce with official data.

"Over a period of time, sooner or later, the contracts awarded will reflect the contemplated work which is now running ahead," L. Seth Schmitman, chief statistician for the company, told International News Service.

Although the actual contract work for 1930 is revealed as almost a billion dollars behind the figures for 1929, Schmitman pointed out that the ultimate contracting for the projected construction would have an important bearing on the employment situation.

However, he termed the published reports that almost a billion dollars had been drafted through-out the United States to furnish work as "highly erroneous or paper promises."

He expressed the opinion that if additional projects were to be undertaken under present economic conditions it would have to be developed from improvements on present industrial plants and not from expansion, together with public utility construction.

FATALLY HURT WHEN AUTO UPSETS ALONG SPRINGFIELD PIKE

Russell Mills, Negro, Of Yellow Springs, Is Victim

Russell Mills, 18, colored, son of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Mills, Yellow Springs, was instantly killed when an auto he was driving left the Springfield Pike and upset at the abrupt curve on Jacoby's hill, two miles south of Yellow Springs at 11:30 o'clock Thursday night.

Sustaining a skull fracture, Mills was dead when his body was extricated from the overturned machine. The car was also occupied by two companions, Arthur White, 20, and Buddy Hughes, 20, both colored of Yellow Springs. White was cut on the left hand but Hughes escaped with bruises.

Mills, who had been staying with friends in Springfield, drove to Yellow Springs, where he picked up White and Hughes and started for Xenia. Witnesses of the accident, it was reported, said Mills was driving at high speed and when he failed to negotiate the sharp downhill curve in the highway, the car got out of control.

Although death had already taken place, the body of Mills was brought to McClellan Hospital by Leroy Bird, colored, E. Second St., Xenia, a passing autoist. Bird and five others were driving toward Xenia directly behind the Mills machine and saw the accident. White was also taken to the local hospital for treatment but Hughes returned to Yellow Springs.

Mills is survived by his parents, six brothers and three sisters, Lester, Howard, Edmund, Ernest, Wayne, Chester, Marguerite, Priscilla and Grace May. He also leaves his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, Springfield.

The youth was a member of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows at Yellow Springs and attended the Baptist Church there.

Funeral arrangements are not complete but are expected to be held at 1:30 p. m. Monday, either at the home or at the Baptist Church.

FIGHT DEPRESSION WITH SALARY CUTS

CLEVELAND, Oct. 31.—A ten per cent reduction in the salaries of every officer and employee not working under the "stagger" system of employment, was announced here today by the Cleveland Railway Co.

The wage cut is an attempt to reduce operating expenses, it was learned. The salary reduction, unprecedented in the history of the railway, will become effective tomorrow, and will continue in effect until the present depression has been passed, officials stated.

Motorman conductors and bus operators of the company will be working under the "stagger" system of employment in order to give additional work to the extras, next Wednesday, it was announced.

THREE FIREMEN ARE INJURED IN DAYTON

DAYTON, O., Oct. 31.—Halloween celebrations were blamed today for a false fire alarm here last night which resulted in a collision between a fire truck and street car, injuring three city firemen and the operator of the street car.

The injured firemen were George Prockup, Roy J. Clegg and Theodore Brookie. Prockup was the most seriously hurt. He suffered a broken leg and a crushed shoulder. His condition was reported as critical today.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 31.—Two famous comedians of the baseball diamond, Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, are reported to have quarreled and broken up the famous combination which inspired many a laugh for baseball fans, according to rumors prevalent today.

"It is just a case of professional jealousy," said Earl Mack, coach of the American and National League baseball stars now on tour.

Altrock said he would not take part in several over-reel motion pictures which were being planned for the pair. He said he was going home, while Schacht declared he would remain and do singles for the movies.

Whether the famous pair will be associated with the Washington baseball club next year is not definitely known.

ACTIVITIES OF SHAFOR AIRED AT HEARING OF DORGER CASE

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 31.—Additional testimony concerning the activities of Amor W. Shafer, former district manager of the Henry L. Doherty Company, was expected to be presented today to the jury in criminal court here.

It was hearing the case of Frank J. and Clarence Dorgier, former officials of the wrecked Cosmopolitan Bank and Trust Company.

It was intimated at yesterday's session of the trial that Shafer, who is now serving a penitentiary term for embezzlement, gave worthless checks to the bank in change for his cashier's checks, and that the officials knew of the transactions and made no effort to collect them.

Two cashier's checks, one for $65,000 and the other for $35,000, were issued to Shafer June 4, five days before the bank closed its doors, the testimony of Cecil Hall, expert state accountant, disclosed.

Hall, who was to resume the witness stand today, was expected to be the last witness for the prosecution.

The Dorgiers, father and son, are charged with wrecking the $9,000,000 banking institution.

RESENT USE OF OUTSIDE LABOR ON OFFICE SITE

Local Workers Demand Jobs; Contractors Halt Work

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31.—Resenting the importation of seventy-five laborers from Cleveland to work on Ohio's new state office building, nearly 2,000 jobless men of Columbus today started a riot on the site along the Scioto River front here.

No one was reported injured in the demonstration of resentment against the employment of the Cleveland workers, although the riot appeared for a time as though it would reach serious proportions.

Work on the wrecking of the old buildings on the site of the new office building was stopped following the attacks of the jobless army, which carried away all tools during the first onslaught.

Leaders of the demonstrators declared that the importation of the Cleveland workers was in violation of an alleged promise made by state officials that all work on the new building would be given to the unemployed of Columbus.

The seventy-five men who were imported here for work on the new office building were brought in by the Cuyahoga Wrecking Co. of Cleveland, a sub-contractor for the Struck Construction Co. of Cincinnati.

After stopping work at the new office building site, the army of jobless marched en masse to the capitol where they forced their way into the corridor of the building and sought entrance to the offices of Governor Myers Y. Cooper.

The demonstrators were halted at the portals leading into Governor Cooper's offices by four policemen.

Denied admission to the governor's offices, the demonstrators milled about the corridors causing considerable disturbance.

Adjutant General Reynolds finally wedged his way outside to the leaders of the mob, who stated their demands that they instead of Cleveland laborers, be given the work on the new office building.

Reynolds advised the rioters to "calm down" and promise them that he would "look into the matter immediately."

Leaders of the riot promptly handed down the ultimatum that "unless" some state officials take a hand in this right away, we will see that no work is done on the new office building."

The demonstrators for the most part were orderly while in the capitol building. Immediately following their talk with Reynolds, the mass of demonstrators surged out of the statehouse and returned to the site of the new office building.

Leaders of the demonstration, however, stayed behind for further conferences with state officials regarding the situation.

PROCLAMATION FOR ARMISTICE DAY IS ISSUED BY COOPER

Urges Observance Of Anniversary Of War's End

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31.—"Peace is this nation's most precious possession," declared Governor Myers Y. Cooper today in a proclamation declaring Tuesday, November 11 as Armistice Day.

The governor announced that the twelfth anniversary of the signing of the armistice at the end of the World War "be generally observed" and that "all schools, fraternal and civic organizations commemorate the event with appropriate ceremonies and exercises."

"On this Armistice Day, let every person in the state observe two minutes of silence in honor of our soldier dead," the proclamation read. "During the two-minute period, which will begin with the sounding of 'roll call' at 11 o'clock from the steps of the capitol in Columbus, let all activity cease. 'Taps' shall break the silence—a signal for the resumption of the tasks of the day."

The governor declared that "in no other factor of civilization are the citizens of our nation so vitally concerned as in the attitude of their country toward peace."

SENATORIAL FIGHT IN STATE ATTRACTS NATION'S INTEREST

Prohibition Angle Focuses Attention On Ohio Vote

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31.—Ohio's senatorial fight is attracting nationwide interest today as one of the most intensive political campaigns in the history of the Buckeye State nears its close.

This widespread interest is due to the fact that the question of repealing the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution is an outstanding issue in the quest for the senatorial toga.

Former Congressman Robert J. Bulkley, of Cleveland, the Democratic nominee for United States senator, has waged an ardent campaign in support of the proposal that the federal prohibition amendment be repealed and that its enabling act—the Volstead Law—be nullified by congressional action.

Bulkley, George White, of Marietta, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, and all other Democratic candidates have been actively supported by former Governors James M. VOTE NEXT TUESDAY WILL FALL BEHIND 1928 RECORD VOTE

Important Issues Failed To Bring Registration

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Except in certain sections where there are particularly bitter and savage contests the politicians sitting at the council tables in Washington do not expect to see very heavy voting next Tuesday.

In 1928, under the impetus of the passions aroused in the Hoover-Smith campaign, an all-time record was hung up when nearly 37,000,000 voters marched to the polls and marked their ballots. There will be nothing like that number next week, although a better-than-normal off-year vote is anticipated.

Registration has fallen off sharply in many sections of the country, according to reports drifting into Washington—this despite the popularity and acuteness of the prohibition issue in many states.

New York had Pennsylvania are typical examples.

In New York there is being staged one of the most spectacular gubernatorial battles the state has ever witnessed, with Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidential aspirations in the balance, and the Republicans for the first time advocating repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Yet the registration is described as "way off." This decrease in up-state registration is considered a serious drawback to the chances of Charles H. Tuttle, the Republican candidate for governor, for he must come down to New York with a tremendous majority to offset the majority which Tammany always rolls up for the Democratic candidate in the city.

In Pennsylvania, which is presenting the most hectic struggle for the governorship ever witnessed, a similar condition prevails. The state is in political turmoil, with stalwart Republicans bolting Gifford Pinchot's candidacy, and equally stalwart Democrats bolting John M. Hemphill because of his weakness.

The center of the revolt is Philadelphia, but notwithstanding this the registration in that great city is said to be nearly 200,000 below normal. If Pinchot wins next Tuesday, it probably will be due to this falling off of registration in Philadelphia, for the vote there will go heavily against him.

The business depression is held generally to blame for the decrease in registration and the apathy of the voters that is apparent in so many states. The vote in an off-year, between presidential elections, always falls away. The decrease next Tuesday from the figures of two years ago is expected to be enormous. If the total vote runs above 28,000,000 most of the political leaders here will be greatly surprised.

Relief Forces Rush To Stricken Area Along Adriatic

ROME, Oct. 31.—With the same machine-like rapidity which enabled Italy's speedy recovery from the disastrous earthquake of several months ago, relief forces were mobilized today in the Adriatic provinces where a new series of temblors yesterday killed more than thirty persons and rendered hundreds homeless.

Twelve hours after the quakes occurred, complete order had been restored throughout most of the stricken districts, with the homeless being cared for in houses and buildings that escaped damage, and the injured treated in hospitals. Relief work was directed to isolated communities in the mountains.

The new quakes struck a zone on the Adriatic Sea between Ancona and Pesaro. Heavy property damage was done in the provinces of Ancona, Pesaro and Macerata, where hundreds of houses were wrecked or made uninhabitable.

Due to the disruption of telephone and telegraph facilities in the earthquake zone, Italian government officials found difficulty in securing an authentic estimate of the casualties. Until relief forces could reach the isolated mountain towns and repair telegraph lines, a complete checkup was impossible.

First estimates of the death toll ranged from fifteen to fifty, but official reports indicated they would not exceed thirty. More than 300 were known to have been injured, twenty-three of this number seriously.

The cities of Ancona, Pesaro and Fano were the most important communities in the quake zone, but due to the fact they were on the fringe of the epicentre, they escaped the full force of the temblors. All suffered considerable property damage but comparatively small loss of life.

The town of Senigallia was hit hardest of any municipality. Here twenty-two were known to have been killed and more than 100 injured.

Tragic scenes occurred in Senigallia. Scores of houses and buildings came tumbling into the streets with a terrific roar. Most of the victims lost their lives when struck by falling masonry. Survivors of the disaster at Senigallia said the ground rolled and heaved as if shaken by some giant hand.

It was estimated the quake was felt over an area of 1,000 square miles.

Many beautiful public buildings were destroyed or almost irreparably damaged, Ancona losing its lavish new provincial palace while churches throughout the quake zone were reported badly damaged.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—"I feel great—wonderful. Don't I look it?" Gene Tunney speaking.

The retired heavyweight champion of the world, who had dropped out of the limelight for some time, pounded his abdomen with his fists and smilingly remarked: "Hard as nails."

"I've been keeping in trim chopping trees," Tunney explained. "See these blisters" (exhibiting his famous pair of hands). "I also do some road work every day. I like to run, you know."

"192-1-2," was his specific reply. That is Tunney's "fighting weight."

"Not going to fight again?" he was asked.

"Oh, no—I'm through with the ring forever," he hastily declared. Tunney was interviewed by International News Service today in the courtroom of Supreme Court Justice Hatting where he is the defendant in a suit for $400,000 filed against him by Tim Mara, sports promoter, for alleged breach of a contract to box with Jack Dempsey in Philadelphia in September, 1926.

The idea of coming to court daily doesn't appeal to Tunney but he is watching and listening to the proceedings with interest as he sits at the defense counsel table.

FAMED COMEDIANS ARE SPLIT

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 31.—Two famous comedians of the baseball diamond, Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, are reported to have quarreled and broken up the famous combination which inspired many a laugh for baseball fans, according to rumors prevalent today.

"It is just a case of professional jealousy," said Earl Mack, coach of the American and National League baseball stars now on tour.

Altrock said he would not take part in several one-reel motion pictures which were being planned for the pair. He said he was going home, while Schacht declared he would remain and do singles for the movies.

Whether the famous pair will be associated with the Washington baseball club next year is not definitely known.

ACTIVITIES OF SHAFOR AIRED AT HEARING OF DORGER CASE

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 31.—Additional testimony concerning the activities of Amor W. Shafer, former district manager of the National Bank and Trust Company, was expected to be presented today to the jury in criminal court here.

It was intimated at yesterday's session of the trial that Shafer, who is now serving a penitentiary term for embezzlement, gave worthless checks to the bank in change for its cashier's checks, and that the officials knew of the transactions and made no effort to collect them.

Two cashier's checks, one for $65,000 and the other for $25,000, were issued to Shafer June 4, five days before the bank closed its doors, the testimony of Cecil Hall, expert state accountant, disclosed. Hall, who was to resume the witness stand today, was expected to be the last witness for the prosecution.

The Dorgers, father and son, are charged with wrecking the $9,000,000 banking institution.

KILLED BY TRAIN
CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 31.—John A. Doolin, 58, former city inspector, was killed late yesterday by a Baltimore and Ohio passenger train here. He was a brother of Charlie Doolin, former big league baseball player.

BANDITS SOUGHT

CLEVELAND, Oct. 31.—Waylaying their victim as he drove into his garage, two masked gunmen today held up George Abbey, contractor, and robbed him of a diamond ring valued at $1,500 and $200 in cash.

The bandits made their getaway in their automobile which had been left with the motor running on an adjoining street.

Leaders of the demonstration, however, stayed behind for further conference with state officials regarding the situation.

PROCLAMATION FOR ARMISTICE DAY IS ISSUED BY COOPER

Urges Observance Of Anniversary Of War's End

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31.—"Peace is this nation's most precious possession," declared Governor Myers Y. Cooper today in a proclamation declaring Tuesday, November 11 as Armistice Day.

The governor asked that the twelfth anniversary of the signing of the armistice at the end of the World War "be generally observed" and that "all schools, fraternal and civic organizations commemorate the event with appropriate ceremonies and exercises."

"On this Armistice Day, let every person in the state observe two minutes of silence in honor of our soldier dead," the proclamation read. "During the two-minute period, which will begin with the sounding of 'roll call' at 11 o'clock from the steps of the capitol in Columbus, let all activity cease. 'Taps' shall break the silence—a signal for the resumption of the tasks of the day."

The governor declared that "in no other factor of civilization are the citizens of our nation so vitally concerned as in the attitude of their country toward peace."

MISSING BANKER-FLYER HAS HAD ADVENTUROUS CAREER

By ALEXANDER HERMAN
Central Press Staff Writer
NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—As long as Charles V. Bob, engineer, banker and aviation enthusiast, did his high flying in the air, he was riding on high socially, financially and sportsmanly.
But when he translated the darling of the air to Wall Street, and started operations that set this stock soaring—that dropping, he couldn't avoid eventual crash.
Now his name is enmeshed with a large question mark. Authorities seek him; his family fears that he is a suicide; and some 5,000 or more investors who stuck their money into one or the other of the companies he organized wish they could lay their hands on him.
Loss to investors may reach $12,000,000, authorities say.
Bob thought he could beat Wall Street. He plunged in where others feared to tread. An invention made a new type of lighting practical for widespread advertising. He formed a company to exploit it. This group was in direct competition with another, which had first start in the field.
With the same directness that made him a fine flyer, when Colonel Lindbergh's Paris flight focused renewed attention on aviation, Bob went after the other company. When a long and expensive legal and financial battle got nowhere, the former engineer caused the arrest one night of the president and vice president of the opposing concern, charging them with the publishing of misleading statements.
As a result of this a $500,000 damage action for false arrest and malicious prosecution was filed against Bob. This action, as well as the other, are still pending.
In the meantime, Bob went on with many other enterprises. At the same time, he kept up his interest in aviation and became one of the chief backers of the Byrd

Arizona, Nevada and Canadian mining camps lured him. The spirit of adventure which has characterized his undertakings led him to such boom towns as Ely, Virginia City and Tonopah.
With "Best People"
When he appeared on the aviation horizon Bob began to be seen with the "best people" everywhere. At a dinner given by Walter Chrysler, for Gene Tunney, Bob was an important guest.
Bob's extravagance and his magnificent gestures captured the imagination of the Wall Street crowd and it was not until the crash came that its members realized they knew almost nothing about the man.
During the early October slump in the securities markets, Bob's companies seemed to be playing aviation dips all over the tape. While the rest of the market was going down, some of the Bob issues rose to new highs. Then, suddenly, bottoms seemed to drop from under, and some of the stocks dropped to prices which were only a third of their value at opening.
When several checks which were paid to a brokerage house for certain deliveries were suddenly stopped, the firm found itself unable to meet its obligations, and was suspended from its exchange. This centered attention on Bob. But he was gone.
That was early in the month. Since then the missing financier has been reported in Chicago, Akron, abroad, in an airplane accident, and in divers other predicaments.

Pleas Court by the Bowersville Bank at Bowersville, which seeks to have the constable prevented from disposing of twenty head of hogs he is alleged to have removed from the property of C. S. Cummings in Jefferson Twp., under a judgment obtained against Cummings in the township magistrate's court.
The bank claims it recovered a judgment for $18.48 against Cummings last October 20 which is prior to that obtained in the justice court.
It is set forth that an execution was issued on dth that the sheriff levied on the personal goods of Cummings and placed William Bethel in charge of the property.
Two days later Constable Story, the bank charges, without authority, forcibly took away in a truck twenty head of hogs weighing 150 pounds each and deposited them at the property of O. A. Mason in Bowersville.
On October 28 when the sheriff attempted to get the hogs, Constable Story surreptitiously removed them from the premises, possibly taking them out of the county, and has since advertised them for sale without designating either the time or place for the sale, the petition avers.
Declaring the amount of the magistrate court's judgment is greatly less than the value of the property levied upon, the bank seeks to have the court settle the

SHOEMAKER SENTENCED TO PEN FOR FIFTEEN YEAR MINIMUM

Alleged by police to have been responsible for twenty-two burglaries committed in Xenia and vicinity within the last five months, Ervin T. Shoemaker, 26, was sentenced to serve from fifteen to thirty years in Ohio penitentiary by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy Friday morning.

Shoemaker had been secretly indicted by the October grand jury on two counts of housebreaking, had pleaded not guilty and was scheduled to be tried Friday on the specific charge of looting the Ludlow Road residence of Tommy I. Mason of property valued at $300 the night of October 4.

Confronted with a mass of fingerprint evidence and testimony which Police Chief O. H. Cornwell expected to introduce in an effort to obtain a conviction, defense counsel changed Shoemaker's plea to guilty and Judge Gowdy immediately imposed the fifteen to thirty year sentence.

Chief Cornwell considered the case a triumph for fingerprint identification. The state expected to introduce enlarged pictures of photographs made of fingerprints found on a dresser drawer at the Mason residence the morning after the burglary, which compared favorably with prints of Shoemaker on file at the Ohio Bureau of Identification, London state prison farm.

In order to qualify as an expert in fingerprint identification, Chief Cornwell had also subpoenaed experts from the state bureau of identification and the Dayton and Springfield police departments, whose testimony was expected to show the Xenia police chief is an established authority along this line.

Chief Cornwell, even though the Shoemaker case did not go to trial, achieved his purpose of being established in the records of a Greene County court as a fingerprint expert, an accomplishment for which he has been striving for some time because it will aid him in future cases.

John W. Parks, superintendent of the state bureau of identification and investigation at the London prison farm; Captain Harvey Sifferd of the Dayton bureau of fingerprint identification, and Sergeant John Law, of the Springfield bureau, had been expected to testify to Chief Cornwell's qualifications through their association with him during the disastrous fire at Ohio Penitentiary last Easter when fingerprint experts from over the state joined in the task of identifying the bodies of charred convicts.

Of the large number of burglaries attributed to Shoemaker, Chief Cornwell and Patrolman Ed Craig obtained confessions that cleared up eight robberies, including the following: John Keilwien Cincinnati Pike, May 30; Dr. J. R. McCormick, 420 N. King St., September 3; R. W. Haws, September 20; D. L. Gregg, September 20; Leonard Jones filling station, September 28; People's Oil Co. filling station, Bellbrook Ave.; September 28; Stiles Coal Co. office, October 17, and Yellow Springs Lumber Co., October 11.

Police were also convicted that he was implicated in the following burglaries: Clarence Jeffries, N. West St., June 8; Mr. Durnbaugh, Cincinnati Pike, in July; Brice Linkhart, Oldtown, last July or August; Foy S. King, Dayton Ave., September 4; Abe Hyman, N. King St., September 3; Fay Kershner, Yellow Springs, September 27; R. P. Rinck, 415 W. Market St., September 29; Xenia Central High School building, October 2; American Loan and Realty Co., Steele Bldg., October 10; Ledbetter Coal Co., October 11; Bocklett-King Co., October 17; Bessie Bechtel, S. Gallopway St., in July; Emma Kennedy, 729 W. Second St., in July; and Robert S. Bird and Sons, Cedarville, October 17.

Shoemaker refused to admit other burglaries or confess where the stolen property was hidden or sold on the ground he would implicate accomplices, police say. Property recovered by police includes a typewriter, a shot gun, an unidentified kodak and bill fold, two suits of clothes, pair of gloves, a hat and vest, a hand bag, and miscellaneous clothing. The man refused to assist in recovering any other stolen property.

RECEIVES CUTS IN AUTO COLLISION

Mrs. George N. Pillsbury, Jr., Trebeins, received cuts on her lip which required two stitches to close, when the sport coupe, which she was driving and a small roadster, driven by George Nead, Negro, Xenia, crashed head-on on the Dayton Pike a mile west of Trebeins, near the C. A. Jacobs farm Thursday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock.

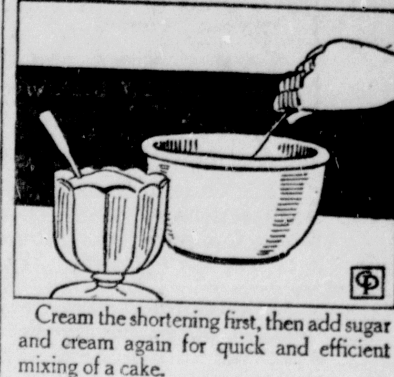

The car driven by Nead was traveling toward Xenia and had just passed another car. In attempting to right his car on the road the collision occurred. Mrs. Pillsbury was brought to Espey Hospital, this city, where her injuries were treated. Both cars were damaged.

JAIL IS POPULAR

HERE is a boost for Sheriff Ohmer Tate's jail.

Arraigned before Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Thursday morning on a vagrancy charge, Wesley Emerick, 80, was given his choice by the court—confinement in the county infirmary or the county jail. Emerick chose the jail, whereupon his honor imposed a fine of $25 and costs, a total of $27.50. Emerick will not have to the next nineteen days.

Traveling Man Tells Health Secret

Philadelphia, Pa.—L. Lamberton of this city, traveling salesman, is widely known for his excellent health. Knowing the hurried life travelers must lead, it is all the more surprising. Interviewed recently, Mr. Lamberton said "I find that travel, with its irregular hours and change of food, tends to constipate. For that reason, a bottle of Pluto Water is always in my bag. I find that it affords speedy relief, even in the most stubborn cases. I recommend Pluto to every man who travels a great deal."

Pluto Water is invaluable, not only as a relief from constipation, but as a preventive. Take a small quantity each morning upon arising, diluted

ARREST YOUTHS FOR GASOLINE THEFTS

Three Dayton youths, caught by police while in the alleged act of syphoning gasoline out of the tank of an automobile parked along the curb near the West and Main St. intersection at 3 a. m. Friday, were arrested and turned over to Juvenile Court. Judge S. C. Wright expected to dispose of the case Friday afternoon. Two of the boys are 17 years of age and the third is 16. The auto in which they were riding had run out of gas and the youths were helping themselves to a new supply when police interrupted their task.

THE HAPPIEST HEART
WHO drives the horses of the sun
Shall lord it but a day;
Better the lowly deed were done,
And kept the humble way.

The rust will find the sword of fame,
The dust will hide the crown;
Ay, none shall nail so high his name
Time will not tear it down.

The happiest heart that ever beat
Was in some quiet breast
That found the common daylight sweet,

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds.—Hebrews 1, 2.

DISARMAMENT SITUATION

Geneva dispatches paint a gloomy picture for the League of Nations preparatory commission on disarmament, which meets early next month. Superficially conditions appear less favorable to the limitation of armaments than they did a year ago. The London conference started France and Italy rattling their sabers anew. The German Fascists have thrown a scare across the Rhine and given the fire-eating French nationalists something to chew on. Arthur Henderson rubbed France's fur the wrong way by telling Aristide Briand that disarmament is the best guarantee of security and therefore should precede it. Germany has put in her oar by reminding the allies that they have not yet fulfilled their pledge at Versailles to disarm, as they compelled her to do. As a result of all these developments the cause of disarmament has received a serious setback.

Great Britain and France, whose respective positions on security guarantees have hardened since the London naval conference, are expected to cling tenaciously to their respective traditional policies. As the most powerful two nations in the league their disagreement is not likely to be easily overcome. All eyes, according to the correspondents, are turned in the league's dilemma to the United States. A statement from Mr. Hoover that would be acceptable to the chief delegations at the coming conference is described as being about the only thing that could break the deadlock and open the way for a fruitful discussion.

The United States, too, has its traditional policy with respect to European affairs. The compliment now paid it by the principal nations of Europe in turning to it to solve their problems for them is appreciated; but how far it can depart from its historic policy of aloofness in an effort to help Europe help itself is a question that is not to be lightly approached. We have stood ready at all times to go side length with Europe in the direction of disarmament. That, however, is quite a different thing from jeopardizing our own interests, without fundamentally altering in the slightest the bellicosity of nations which damn our aloofness in one breath, while in the next they damn us for alleged interference in European affairs.

A French editor, visiting this country, says that Americans do not know France nearly so well as the French know America. We are not so sure about that. The American government knew a lot more about France than the French government did about America, when the time came to discuss war debts.

We have no desire to get into an argument with Dr. Yandell Henderson, professor of applied psychology at Yale, over his contention that four percent beer is non-intoxicating for people who are used to drinking. Still no such claim of innocuousness was ever made for beer in pre-Volstead days.

The material out of which platforms are constructed has an obviously sympathetic affinity with the material that nature used in constructing the heads of resolutions committees.

The French chef who said Americans know nothing about soup was away off. They know altogether too much about it.

If ye fulfil the royal law according to the scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself, ye do well: But if ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin, and are convinced of the law as transgressors.—James ii, 8, 9.

DID YOU EVER MEET THE DEVIL?

Did you ever meet the Devil?
I'm sure you'd like him. He's a charming fellow, really, with a most persuasive personality and the best of manners.

You'd never suspect he is the Devil. He dresses just like everyone else. He may have horns, but he keeps them under his hat. He may have had a forked tail, but he docked it some time ago. And though he may have a cloven hoof, I'm quite sure he takes it to a chiropractor often; it's not obvious. You wouldn't know he is the Devil.

I met the Devil just the other evening. I think it was on a Blue Monday. I was walking along the street and he said "Good evening" so pleasantly that we fell to talking about this and that. The light was dim, but from what I could see of his face I gathered that it was handsome, with a look of gentle melancholy and apparent sympathy about it. He wasn't wearing a beard, nor even a monocle.

He told me I was a rather remarkable person, but I wasn't appreciated. He assured me I wasn't appreciated and that it was a great shame that I wasn't. He told me I didn't make enough money, but that the finest human beings never did make enough. I should have inherited a fortune and been free to travel over the whole world, improving myself, seeing its wonders. "It's a shame," said the Devil to me, "the way people of very little ability, but unscrupulous so often get ahead in this world by climbing over their fellows while fine people like you seldom are either understood or rewarded as they should be."

I agreed modestly and waited for the Devil to continue. He made me feel sad and sort of happy at the same time, but just at that most interesting moment—he tipped his hat, said good-bye, and disappeared, leaving me sorry for myself and wondering who my charming neighbor might be.

So I went along the street and met a friend of mine. I knew his story too well. His wife is sick, and one of his children is crippled, and he hasn't had much work for months. But he managed to laugh a little, at himself and at the world, and he told me he hadn't lost heart yet and he was sure his luck would take a turn for the better very soon. He was working at it and—

Just then right in the middle of my brave friend's talk, I found myself saying out loud:

"Now I know who that pleasant gentleman was—he was the Devil! Nobody but the Devil has a line like that!"

And I was ashamed for not knowing before that only the Devil ever tells a man that he's not being appreciated!

General Grant
Is it true that General Grant's given name was Hiram Ulysses, and if so, how did he come to use the initials "U. S."?

It is true that General Grant's given name was Hiram Ulysses, but as a boy he was usually called by his second name, and when in 1839 Congressman Hamer applied for Grant's appointment for West Point, he gave the boy's name as "Ulysses Simpson," "Simpson" being Grant's mother's maiden name. All Grant's efforts to have the error corrected were in vain, and he remained U. S. Grant.

In the moving pictures, does the camera show the true height of a person or does it make a small person appear taller than they actually are?

The camera itself has no part in creating illusion of size in motion pictures save its proximity to the person photographed. Screen actors and actresses have been made to appear smaller than they really were by using a background of extra-sized furniture. By the same logic an actor seen against a background of undersized furniture appears larger. Also a short person appearing in a cast of persons of nearly equal height appears of normal height.

Sees Employment Head As Inspiring Confidence on Eve of "Race Against Human Misery"

—CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Colonel Arthur Woods, President Hoover's director of employment—which he prefers to the term unemployment—gives the impression of an unusually hard, cold, albeit high-powered executive until he starts to speak and smile, when he becomes entirely human.

The high-powered hint lingers even then.

The colonel has a tallish, spare, athletic figure, iron gray hair, blue-gray eyes, a tanned, shaven face and the look of about 50 autumns, though he has seen 60, and says he expects to take up golf when he grows too old for tennis.

"A Go Getter"

He suggests the go getter in every motion. Yet there is no hurry about him and not a sign of embarrassment in the august official society which he so suddenly and recently joined. Perhaps he considers it no more august than the J. P. Morgans, into whose family he married, or the Rockefellers, for whom he describes himself as handyman. He shows to advantage among cabinet members in short.

Nevertheless, he admits he has taken on a difficult job in his present role.

What makes his employment task especially difficult is its extreme urgency—stalling off a distressful winter for millions, with snow already flying.

Had he been summoned some months ago when unemployment already was warningly serious but the weather was warmer, giving him time to plan ahead for winter's aggravation of conditions, his race against human misery, as he expresses it, hardly would have been as strenuous as it is today.

A Real Task

I made bold to ask him if his task would not have been simpler had it not been handed to him quite so late.

The earlier such situations are met the better, he agreed, but immediately qualified this statement with the explanation that the existing situation has by no means been neglected since last summer—on the contrary, it was to combine a multiplicity of activities which now need to be centralized after vast accomplishments in the right direction that his services finally were requested.

Edward Eyre Hunt, secretary to the 1921 unemployment commission, ten cents he had squandered on doughnuts and coffee, in all likelihood, represented the dregs of the exchequer.

But not for an instant did his polite desert him. He shrugged, smiled with well-bred indifference, and turning, as if thoroughly bored with his environment, nonchalantly departed.

I know a hungry man when I see one. Also I recognize genius in the number. Fate had cast the old actor for the lead in "The Tragedy" of the Automat. Without an instant's preparation he had effected a most consummate bit of artistry—the greatest piece of acting of his career—and his audience was a lone scribbler.

WHATT A NAME!

The Chinese are a wonderful people. A hard working and abstemious folk who weekly wrings the shirt tails of a number of the city's leading bootleggers, operates his laundry on a cash basis and has taken great pains to make his customers understand that bottled goods will not be accepted in settlement of wash bills. The "gentle yellow pirate" bears the appropriate name of No Gin.

who was temporarily designated to the same post under Director Woods, was possibly a trifle more illuminating when I put my query to him.

"That is a fair question," he said. "But last summer there were prospects of a natural improvement sooner than it actually has occurred."

"In other words, why provide relief that may not be needed?" Colonel Woods accepts conditions as he finds them, anyway.

I was not permitted to interrogate him as to his program while he is still formulating it.

However, it is a foregone conclusion that there will be nothing in the form of doles, but every effort to co-ordinate and stimulate local employment, campaigns nationwide, countrywide, citywide, and of a private character supplemented by all possible federal improvement and construction work.

I would have liked to ask the colonel his opinion of the system of staggered employment urged by War Secretary Hurley.

Five-Day Week

President Green of the American Federation of Labor stands pat for the standard six-day rate of pay for the five-day working week he is demanding, but it appears that a series of three-day shifts for alternating sets of workers on a basis of three days' pay per shift somehow is a different proposition in principle from six days' of work for six days' pay—and satisfactory.

Economics in general Colonel Woods was quite ready to discuss.

"Periodic spells of unemployment ultimately will be eliminated at the present rate," he said. "Indeed, the present one would be far worse but for the intelligent management which took the crest off the latest boom and thereby modified the severity of the ensuing slump."

Inspires Confidence
Varied as the colonel's career has been, it almost invariably is as Manhattan's former police commissioner that he is referred to.

Can you account for it? I asked him.

"The same thing accounts for it that accounts for detective stories' popularity," he rejoined.

There is this about the colonel—he inspires confidence. In ending economic depression, that goes a long way.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

MENU HINT

Apple Sauce
Roast Pork Baked Sweet Potatoes
Cabbage-Green Pepper-Carrot Salad
Popcorn Custard
Tea or Coffee
Why not serve popcorn in some form for dessert? It's an original idea but not impractical. Included in today's recipes are several good recipes. Try them out one at a time. Even popcorn balls would make good dessert.

Today's Recipes

Pop Corn Custard.—Two eggs, one-fourth cup sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two cups hot milk, one-half cup popped corn, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Beat eggs, add sugar and salt. Pour in the milk slowly, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Add vanilla and pour into slightly-greased custard cups, putting a few kernels of corn in each cup. Set custard cups in a pan containing an inch of hot water. Bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees Fahrenheit, until firm.

Pop Corn Balls.—One large panful of popped corn, six cups sugar, two and one-half cups corn syrup, two cups water, one-half pound butter, one-fourth teaspoon vanilla. Put sugar, syrup and water into a saucepan. Heat slowly to boiling, stirring all the while. When sugar is dissolved, add butter and cook to a hard ball stage, 250 degrees Fahrenheit. Have corn popped and salted. Add vanilla and salt to syrup, pour over corn immediately and shape into balls.

Pop Corn Nuggets.—Two cups sugar, two-thirds cup water, one-fourth teaspoon cream of tartar, one-half cup molasses, two tablespoons butter, one-fourth teaspoon salt, five quarts popped corn. Put sugar, water and cream of tartar into a saucepan, bring to the boil, two cups water, one-half pound butter, one-fourth teaspoon vanilla. Put sugar, syrup and water into a saucepan. Heat slowly to boiling, stirring all the while. When sugar is dissolved, add butter and cook to a hard ball stage, 250 degrees Fahrenheit. Have corn popped and salted. Add vanilla and salt to syrup, pour over corn immediately and shape into balls.

Dr. Clendening Advises Fat Folks

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The organization of the overweight person's home is the most important part of the reduction cure. I am not going to set down a list of menus because I know what you will do. You will pounce on them, and start to try them out. You will neglect all the other things which make for success. And then if you are not sylph-like at the end of a week you will blame me.

Everybody in the household must be in sympathy with the victim, especially the cook. This is not always easy to arrange, for the good old reason that "nobody loves a fat man."

Then the mental attitude of the "patient" must be right. You are going on a diet "not for an hour, not for a day," but so long as ye both shall live.

Diet is the main part of the active treatment. First, no alcohol. You are not just taking a ride on the water wagon. You are up to stay. Alcohol spurs fat. It yields seven calories per teaspoonful, and is burned more readily than foodstuffs thus saving them to be turned into fat.

Second, the sweets. Carbohydrates are probably not as active in forming fat as was once supposed, but they must be eliminated from the diet in part, just the same. The easiest place to do this is sweets. Cut out desserts, cake, sugar in your coffee, candy, ice cream sodas, maple syrup, etc. One slice of bread at a meal is enough. Saccharine is a substance without food value, which is sweeter than sugar. You can put a pellet of that in your coffee.

Fats! They are your worst enemy. My eminent rival, in advising the public on health matters, Mr. Samuel Blythe, informed the readers of a well-known magazine a short time ago that the old ideas about the influence of starches on fat formation were all wrong, and that fat makes fat. I agree with him.

The elimination of fat is hard, because it includes all the sauces and dressings which give so much flavor and gusto to the food. But once done, it yields great results. "Flavor and gusto" are your enemies, anyhow.

No salad dressing. There are 500 calories in an ordinary serving of French dressing or mayonnaise.

No gravy. Little or no butter. Little or no cream.

Just eliminating sweets and fats will go a long way towards keeping your weight down. But think what a lot of good things to eat remain for you.

Fruits, eggs, fish, toast and coffee for breakfast. Clear soup or broth, a serving of meat, choice of spinach, asparagus, sauerkraut, onions, green beans, cabbage, artichokes, broccoli, rhubarb, celery, lettuce and tomato for lunch.

The same or green beans, turnips, string beans, beets or green peas with piece of toast and an orange slice of pineapple, some berries or a peach for dessert, with black coffee for dinner.

Don't Marry Then Regret Choice

—By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

MOST MARRIAGES are the result of an extreme state of emotion which is commonly referred to as falling in love.

I often wonder what would happen if a person sat calmly down and weighed all the pros and cons of matrimony with certain people, weighing the various merits just as in a business deal. The cynics would say that such a person would come to the conclusion that they were far better off unwed.

I don't believe it, however. Old Dame Nature sees to it that, with very few exceptions, man and maid meet their mates, and if they don't they usually have regrets.

When there are two or more boy friends to choose from, how can a girl tell which one to choose? Which is the wisest choice in the following case, for instance?

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have two boy friends and I realize that I can't have both. George and Arthur are their names. I go with Arthur steady. Arthur knows George, but has no idea I go with him. I know I am deceiving Arthur, but I can't decide which one would be best to keep."

"When I meet Arthur at a dance sometimes he never speaks until he's nearly ready to leave. He never hardly notices me in public. I simply can't picture you ever being married to Arthur. A man who never notices a girl in public when he is supposed to be in love with her, surely can't care very deeply for her. It would also seem to me that if he intended asking you to marry him he would introduce you to his family. In fact, I can hardly see how you can be going 'steady' with a boy who treats you as you say Arthur does."

Now George really seems fond of you. Even if he had not asked you to marry him, his actions show that he cares. Judging from your letter, which is all I know about the two boys, of course, I would say that if you did marry Arthur—if he finally condescended to propose—he would be the kind of husband who would keep you in the dark about his affairs—never consult you as an equal, go about his business, expecting neither to receive or give counsel or affection. He would come and go as he pleased and resent your asking questions.

While George would be a pal, a friend and adviser as well as a husband, I would choose George. But don't marry him and then decide you would have been much happier with Arthur. I beg of you,

Use Make-up To Re-shape Mouth

—By GLADYS GLAD

"DEAR MISS GLAD: I have been greatly benefited by the make-up instructions contained in your 'Beauty Culture' booklet. However, I have very thick lips. Is there any way of applying lipstick to make the mouth appear smaller?"

And is there any method of reducing thick lips permanently?

To my knowledge, the only way in which thick lips can be made smaller is by plastic surgery. Incisions are made in the mucous membranes down inside the lips. However, I personally do not advise such operations. There is too much danger attached to them. The lips are among the most prominent features of the face. If the operation is not a success, the face may be horribly disfigured. Moreover, the nerve-ends in the lips may be affected. A young Hollywood dame recently sued a surgeon who had reshaped her lips, because the sensory nerve-fibers had been injured. Her case was based on the fact that when she was kissed, she could not feel it. And she won the case! Unless the face is absolutely disfigured, I would advise you to forego such an operation. If you use your lipstick artfully, you can create the illusion of a very small mouth. Use very little lipstick. If you re-nourge your lips heavily, you will make them too prominent. Keep the color well within the outlines of your lips. Do not follow the natural contours of the lips out to the very edge. If you do this carefully and artistically, your mouth will look much smaller and softer than it really is.

The peroxide and ammonia solution that I advocate for bleaching superfluous hair is also a medicinal water for the lips. In the shops, however, a base is added to the solution to insure moisture for a longer period of time. This base is generally chalk of magnesia. Mix enough chalk of magnesia with two teaspoonfuls of peroxide and one-half a teaspoonful of ordinary household ammonia to form a smooth paste. Spread the paste over the hair to be bleached and allow it to dry. Then remove it with cool water and a soft cloth. If your skin is very dry, a bit of cold cream should be applied after the paste has been removed.

"DEAR MISS GLAD: Is salt water a good mouthwash? My mouth is in an acidic condition, and I have been told to rinse it with this solution. Can you suggest a more effective mouth wash?"

"J. L. K."

Common table salt is an excellent dentifrice. It is an alkaline compound, and helps to neutralize an acid condition of the mouth. However, a more effective mouth wash can be made by the addition of one-quarter of a teaspoonful of borax, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of peroxide to a glass of warm water. The salt helps to neutralize the mouth and keep the gums hard, and the borax and peroxide act as whiteners and antiseptics.

"DEAR MISS GLAD: I have a number of dark hairs on my upper lip. Heretofore, I have been hav-

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds.—Hebrews 1, 1, 2.

DISARMAMENT SITUATION

Geneva dispatches paint a gloomy picture for the League of Nations preparatory commission on disarmament, which meets early next month. Superficially conditions appear less favorable to the limitation of armaments than they did a year ago. The London conference started France and Italy rattling their sabers anew. The German fascists have thrown a scare across the Rhine and given the fire-eating French nationalists something to chew on. Arthur Henderson rubbed France's fur the wrong way by telling Aristide Briand that disarmament is the best guarantee of security and therefore should precede it. Germany has put in her oar by reminding the allies that they have not yet fulfilled their pledge at Versailles to disarm, as they compelled her to do. As a result of all these developments the cause of disarmament has received a serious setback.

Great Britain and France, whose respective positions on security guarantees have hardened since the London naval conference, are expected to cling tenaciously to their respective traditional policies. As the most powerful two nations in the league their disagreement is not likely to be easily overcome. All eyes, according to the correspondents, are turned in the league's dilemma to the United States. A statement from Mr. Hoover that would be acceptable to the chief delegations at the coming conference is described as being about the only thing that could break the deadlock and open the way for a fruitful discussion.

The United States, too, has its traditional policy with respect to European affairs. The compliment now paid it by the principal nations of Europe in turning to it to solve their problems for them is appreciated; but how far it can depart from its historic policy of aloofness in an effort to help Europe help itself is a question that is not to be lightly approached. We have stood ready at all times to go side length with Europe in the direction of disarmament. That, however, is quite a different thing from jeopardizing our own interests, without fundamentally altering in the slightest the bellicosity of nations which damn our aloofness in one breath, while in the next they damn us for alleged interference in European affairs.

A French editor, visiting this country, says that Americans do not know France nearly so well as the French know America. We are not so sure about that. The American government knew a lot more about France than the French government did about America, when the time came to discuss war debts.

We have no desire to get into an argument with Dr. Yandell Henderson, professor of applied psychology at Yale, over his contention that four percent beer is non-intoxicating for people who are used to drinking. Still no such claim of innocuousness was ever made for beer in pre-Prohibition days.

The material out of which platforms are constructed has an obviously sympathetic affinity with the material that nature used in constructing the heads of resolutions committees.

The French chef who said Americans know nothing about soup was away off. They know altogether too much about it.

If ye fulfil the royal law according to the scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself, ye do well: But if ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin, and are convinced of the law as transgressors.—James 2, 8, 9.

DID YOU EVER MEET THE DEVIL?

Did you ever meet the Devil?
I'm sure you'd like him. He's a charming fellow, really, with a most persuasive personality and the best of manners.

You'd never suspect he is the Devil. He dresses just like everyone else. He may have horns, but he keeps them under his hat. He may have had a forked tail once, but he docked it some time ago. And though he may have a cloven hoof, I'm quite sure he takes it to a chiropractor often; it's not obvious. You wouldn't know he is the Devil.

I met the Devil just the other evening. I think it was on a Blue Monday. I was walking along the street and he said "Good evening" so pleasantly that we fell to talking about this and that. The light was dim, but from what I could see of his face I gathered that it was handsome, with a look of gentle melancholy and apparent sympathy about it. He wasn't wearing a beard, nor even a monocle.

He told me I was a rather remarkable person, but I wasn't appreciated. He assured me I wasn't appreciated and that it was a great shame that I wasn't. He told me I didn't make enough money, but that the finest human beings never did make enough. I should have inherited a fortune and been free to travel over the whole world, improving myself, seeing its wonders. "It's a shame," said the Devil to me "the way people of very little ability, but unscrupulous so often get ahead in this world by climbing over their fellows while fine people like you seldom are either understood or rewarded as they should be."

I agreed modestly and waited for the Devil to continue. He made me feel sad and sort of happy at the same time, but just at that most interesting moment—he tipped his hat, said good-bye, and disappeared, leaving me sorry for myself and wondering who my charming neighbor might be.

So I went along the street and met a friend of mine. I knew his story too well. His wife is sick, and one of his children is crippled, and he hasn't had much work for months. But he managed to laugh a little, at himself and at the world, and he told me he hadn't lost heart yet and he was sure his luck would take a turn for the better very soon. He was working at it and—

Just then right in the middle of my brave friend's talk, I found myself saying out loud:

"Now I know who that pleasant gentleman was—he was the Devil! Nobody but the Devil has a line like that!"

And I was ashamed for not knowing before that only the Devil ever tells a man that he's not being appreciated!

He shows to advantage among cabinet members in short.

Nevertheless, he admits he has taken on a difficult job in his present role.

What makes his employment task especially difficult is its extreme urgency—stalling off a disastrous winter for millions, with snow already flying.

Had he been summoned some months ago when unemployment already was warningly serious but the weather was warmer, giving him time to plan ahead for winter's aggravation of conditions, his race against human misery as he expresses it, hardly would have been as strenuous as it is today.

A Real Task

Not that the colonel complains. I made bold to ask him if his task would not have been simpler had it not been handed to him quite so late.

The earlier such situations are met the better, he agreed, but immediately qualified this statement with the explanation that the existing situation has by no means been neglected since last summer—on the contrary, it was to combine a multiplicity of activities which now need to be centralized after vast accomplishments in the right direction that his services finally were requisitioned.

Edward Eyre Hunt, secretary to the 1921 unemployment commission teen cents he had squandered on doughnuts and coffee, in all likelihood, represented the dregs of the exchequer.

But not for an instant did his poise desert him. He shrugged, smiled with well-bred indifference and turning, as if thoroughly bored with his environment, nonchalantly departed.

I know a hungry man when I see one. Also I recognize genius in the mummer. Fate had cast the old actor for the lead in "The Tragedy" of the Automat. Without an instant's preparation he had effected a most consummate bit of artistry—the greatest piece of acting of his career—and his audience was a lone scribbler.

WHATT A NAME!

The Chinese are a wonderful people. A hard working and abstemious Chinik who weekly wrings the shirt tails of a number of the city's leading bootleggers, operates his laundry on a cash basis and has taken great pains to make his customers understand that bottled goods will not be accepted in settlement of wash bills. The "gentle yellow pirate" bears the appropriate name of No Gin.

who was temporarily designated to fill the same post under Director Woods, was possibly a trifle more illuminating when I put my query to him.

"That is a fair question," he said. "But last summer there were prospects of a natural improvement sooner than it actually has occurred."

"In other words, why provide relief that may not be needed?"

No Doles

I was not permitted to interrogate him as to his program while he is still formulating it.

However, it is a foregone conclusion that there will be nothing in the form of doles, but every effort to co-ordinate and stimulate local employment, campaigns—statewide, countrywide, citywide, and of a private character supplemented by all possible federal improvement and construction work.

I would have liked to ask the colonel his opinion of the system of staggered employment urged by War Secretary Hurley.

Five-Day Week

President Green of the American Federation of Labor stands pat for the standard six-day rate of pay for the five-day working week he is demanding, but it appears that a series of three-day shifts for alternating sets of workers on a basis of three days' pay per shift somehow is a different proposition in principle from six days' of work for six days' pay—and satisfactory.

Economics in general Colonel Woods was quite ready to discuss.

"Periodic spells of unemployment ultimately will be eliminated at the present rate," he said. "Indeed, the present one would be far worse but for the intelligent management which took the crest of the latest boom and thereby modified the severity of the ensuing slump."

Inspires Confidence

Varied as the colonel's career has been, it almost invariably has been at the service of the nation as Manhattan's former police commissioner that he is referred to.

"Can you account for it?" I asked him.

"The same thing accounts for it that accounts for detective stories' popularity," he rejoined.

There is this about the colonel—he inspires confidence. In ending economic depression, that goes a long way.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

MENU HINT

Roast Pork Baked Sweet Potatoes Cabbage-Green Pepper-Carrot Salad Popcorn Custard Tea or Coffee

Why not serve popcorn in some form for dessert? It's an original idea but not impractical. Included in today's recipes are several good recipes. Try them out one at a time. Even popcorn balls would make good dessert.

Today's Recipes

Pop Corn Custard.—Two eggs, one-fourth cup sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two cups hot milk, one-half cup popped corn, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Beat eggs, add sugar and salt. Pour in the milk slowly, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Add vanilla and pour into lightly-greased custard cups, putting a few kernels of corn in each cup. Set custard cups in a pan containing an inch of hot water. Bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees Fahrenheit, until firm.

Pop Corn Balls.—One large panful of popped corn, six cups sugar, two and one-half cups corn syrup, two cups water, one-half pound butter, one-fourth teaspoon vanilla. Put sugar, syrup and water into a saucepan. Heat slowly to boiling, stirring all the while. When sugar is dissolved, add butter and cook to a hard ball stage, 250 degrees Fahrenheit. Have corn popped and salted. Add vanilla and salt to syrup, pour over corn immediately and shape into balls.

Pop Corn Nuggets.—Two cups sugar, two-thirds cup water, one-fourth teaspoon cream of tartar, one-half cup molasses, two tablespoons butter, one-fourth teaspoon salt, five quarters popped corn. Put sugar, water and cream of tartar into a saucepan, bring to the boiling point and boil without stirring to 260 degrees Fahrenheit, or until the syrup will crack when tried in well.

Spread on a marble slab or large platter, and when firm cut in pieces or break up in bunches of three to seven kernels.

Dr. Clendening Advises Fat Folks

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The organization of the overweight person's home is the most important part of the reduction cure. I am not going to set down a list of menus because I know what you will do. You will pounce on them, and start to try them out. You will neglect all the other things which make for success. And then if you are not sylph-like at the end of a week you will blame me.

Everybody in the household must be in sympathy with the victim, especially the cook. This is not always easy to arrange, for the good old reason that "nobody loves a fat man."

Then the mental attitude of the "patient" must be right. You are going on a diet "not for an hour, not for a day," but so long as ye both shall live.

Diet is the main part of the active treatment.

First, no alcohol. You are not just taking a ride on the water wagon. You are up to stay. Alcohol spurs fat. It yields seven calories per teaspoonful, and is burned more readily than foodstuffs thus saving them to be turned into fat.

Second, the sweets. Carbohydrates are probably not as active in forming fat as was once supposed, but they must be eliminated from the diet in part, just the same. The easiest place to do this is sweets. Cut out desserts, cake, sugar in your coffee, candy, ice cream sodas, maple syrup, etc. One slice of bread at a meal is enough. Saccharine is a substance without food value, which is sweeter than sugar. You can put a pellet of that in your coffee.

Fats! They are your worst enemy. My eminent rival, in advising the public on health matters, Mr. Samuel Blythe, informed the readers of a well-known magazine a short time ago that the old ideas about the influence of starches on fat formation were all wrong, and that fat makes fat. I agree with him.

The elimination of fat is hard, because it includes all the sauces and dressings which give so much flavor and gusto to the food. But once done, it yields great results. "Flavor and gusto" are your enemies, anyhow.

salad dressing. There are 50 calories in an ordinary serving of French dressing or mayonnaise.

No gravy. Little or no butter. Little or no cream.

Just eliminating sweets and fats will go a long way towards keeping your weight down. But think what a lot of good things to eat remain for you.

Fruits, eggs, fish, toast and coffee for breakfast.

Clear soup or broth, a serving of meat, choice of spinach, asparagus, sauerkraut, onions, green beans, cabbage, artichokes, broccoli, rhubarb, celery, lettuce and tomato for lunch.

The same or green beans, turnips, string beans, beets or green peas with a piece of toast and an orange slice of pineapple, some berries or a peach for dessert, with black coffee for dinner.

EDITOR'S NOTE: A new pamphlet, "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," by Dr. Clendening, can be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 E. Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlet on "Hygiene of Women" also is available for 10 cents.

DEAR MISS GLAD: I have been greatly benefited by the make-up instructions contained in your "Beauty" booklet. However, I have very thick lips. Is there any way of applying lipstick to make the mouth appear smaller? And is there any method of reducing thick lips permanently?

"MRS. TYNEK."

To my knowledge, the only way in which thick lips can be made smaller is by plastic surgery. Incisions are made in the mucous membranes down inside the lips. However, I personally do not advise such operations. There is too much danger attached to them. The lips are among the most prominent features of the face. If the operation is not a success, the face may be horribly disfigured. Moreover, the nerve-ends in the lips may be affected. A young Hollywood dame recently sued a surgeon who had reshaped her lips, because the sensory nerve-fibers had been injured. Her case was based on the fact that when she was kissed, she could not feel it. And she won the case! Unless I would advise you to forego such an operation. If you use your lipstick artfully, you can create the illusion of a very small mouth. Use very little lipstick. If you rouge your lips heavily, you will make them too prominent. Keep the color well within the outlines of your lips. Do not follow the natural contours of the lips out to the very edge. If you do this carefully and artistically, your mouth will look much smaller and softer than it really is.

DEAR MISS GLAD: I have a number of dark hairs on my upper lip. Heretofore, I have been having them bleached in a beauty shop. However, I find this procedure rather expensive, and wish to do the bleaching myself. Can you tell me what bleaching medium is used in the shops?

"MRS. BURNS."

The peroxide and ammonia solution that I advocate for bleaching superfluous hair is also the medium used in most beauty shops. In the shops, however, a base is added to the solution to insure moisture for a longer period of time. This base is generally chalk of magnesium. Mix enough chalk of magnesium with two teaspoonfuls of peroxide and one-half a teaspoonful of ordinary household ammonia to form a smooth paste. Spread the paste over the hair to be bleached, and allow it to dry. Then remove it with cool water and a soft cloth. If your skin is very dry, a bit of cold cream should be applied after the paste has been removed.

DEAR MISS GLAD: Is salt water a good mouthwash? My mouth is in an acidic condition, and I have been told to rinse it with this solution. Can you suggest a more effective mouth wash?

"J. L. K."

Common table salt is an excellent dentifrice. It is an alkaline compound, and helps to neutralize an acid condition of the mouth. However, a more effective mouth wash can be made by the addition of one-quarter of a "teaspoonful of borax, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of peroxide to a glass of warm water. The salt helps to neutralize the mouth and keeps the gums hard, and the borax and peroxide act as whitening agents.

NEW INDOOR GOLF COURSE WILL OPEN

Many Xenians are expected to swing their putters Saturday at the formal opening of the second and latest inside miniature golf course here—a nine-hole links installed by Emerson B. Curtis on the second floor directly over the Ankeny Motor Sales room on Green St.

The course is to be known as the Xenia Indoor Country Club "Wee Willie" links and efforts have been made in decorating the interior to give it a tropical atmosphere. There are white pillars down the center of the room, a profusion of palms and orange and green awnings over the windows inside. Radio music will also entertain patrons of this newest and exceedingly attractive midget links.

The greens are of concrete composition and covered by sand.

Announcement is made that the course, which has been under preparation for some weeks, will be open every afternoon and evening except Sundays.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The stock market settled down to a slightly lower level of prices in the early trading today, when the usual accumulation of over-night selling orders was released.

Though the third quarter Bethlehem Steel earnings of sixty-three cents a share was in line with expectations, the discouraging survey of the steel trade situation by E. G. Grace, president, was calculated to stimulate further selling of the stock. Bethlehem broke to a new low for the year at 69, but selling pressure against the stock was not heavy and good demands was seen around 69 1/2.

Bucs Tie Greenville To End Losing Streak

OUTPLAY LEAGUE RIVAL TO EARN 6 TO 6 TIE IN CLOSING MINUTES

Bell And Adair Lead Central To Twelve First Downs To Six For Home Team; Brilliant Run Gives Greenville Its Lone Score

By PHIL FRAME
THE fourteen-game losing streak bubble of Xenia Central High School football teams over a period of the last two years has not been punctured but it was pricked by the Bucs Thursday afternoon and, as Amos and Andy say, "ain't that somethin'?"

Hardly a local grid fan is now alive who will believe it, but Central High gridders, battling against odds and crippled by injuries, fought a haughty Greenville High eleven to a 6 to 6 tie at Greenville in what had all the earmarks of a Miami Valley League upset.

Without beating around the bush, it was generally conceded the Bucs outplayed Greenville by a handsome margin and should have won. Be that as it may, the accomplishment in playing Greenville better than on even terms throughout the four quarters was worthy of comment when it is considered Xenia had lost five straight games this fall.

Flashing a belated forward pass in the ebbing moments of the game, Xenia gridders filled the ozone above the field with a touchdown in the last minute of play, which offset the lone marker obtained by Greenville in the second quarter when R. Everhardt, captain and quarterback, returned a Buccaneer punt sixty yards for a touchdown.

The decisive margin by which the Bucs outplayed their opponents is best illustrated by the fact Xenia registered twelve first downs against a mere six for Greenville. Xenia's passing attack, which has been ineffective all season, functioned brilliantly. Seven aerials were attempted and four were completed for a total of thirty three yards. Greenville tried six passes, of which four were grounded and two were intercepted by Bell.

Xenia launched a formidable scoring threat in the opening quarter but an unfortunate penalty for offside nullified a twenty-five yard jaunt by Birch Bell to the Greenville three-yard line, the play being called back.

Greenville kicked off to Xenia and Price immediately punted back. The oval touched a Greenville player and the Bucs recovered in midfield. Charles Adair, acting captain and halfback, playing the best game of his scholastic career, reeled off three straight first downs and carried the ball to the Greenville twenty-eight. Bell slipped around right end for twenty-five, placing the ball on the three-yard line, but the gain was not allowed and Xenia drew a five-yard penalty for offside. Two passes were grounded and the ball changed hands on Greenville's thirty. An exchange of punts featured the remainder of the period. Everhardt running a boot back to his own forty-nine as the quarter closed.

R. Everhardt punted off side on Xenia's twenty to open the second period. On the first play Price got off a forty yard kick but R. Everhardt, safety man, giving a fine exhibition of broken field running and aided by handsome interference, ran sixty yards for a touchdown. The pass in an attempt to add the extra point failed.

Greenville had another scoring chance in this period but Xenia held for downs on its own fifteen. A low pass from center was fumbled by Adair and Greenville recovered on the Buccaneer twenty-five. R. Everhardt hit the line for first down on Xenia's fifteen but line thrusts by Bachy, Kagey and R. Everhardt failed to gain and a pass from R. Everhardt to Kerz was grounded. Bell pierced the line for eight and Price went around end for first down. Bell squirmed his way for twenty-two yards to his own forty-three. A line play gained two and a pass failed and Price kicked fifty-five yards as the half ended.

Greenville again had a scoring opportunity early in the third period but the Bucs were once more equal to the occasion. Taking the ball on the Greenville thirty-eight, three plays made it first down on Xenia's thirty-nine. R. Everhardt

Early in the fourth quarter, the Bucs paraded from their own ten-yard line to Greenville's one-yard mark but could not score. Adair picked up four and Bell added five. Birch then hurried a pass to Price for a twenty-yard gain. Bell slipped off tackle for another first down, and again shot a pass to Price, who was upset on the Greenville twenty-three. Price was hurt on the play but remained in the game. Bell broke loose for a twenty-two yard run to the one-yard line, but on the next play lost five yards. Creamer made one and Birch was again stopped. On fourth down Bell heaved a pass to Kinsey in the end zone but Bob muffed it and the ball went to Greenville on the twenty.

Greenville punted to the forty-three, Xenia immediately renewed its overhead attack and Bell passed to Kinsey for a twenty-yard gain. Captain Adair then made a well-nigh impossible catch of Bell's short pass, making it first down on the ten. Bell hit the line for five, then three yards and on the next play plunged over the goal line. With the game in the balance and victory depending upon the extra point, the Bucs faked a place kick with Bell attempting to run the ball across. He failed by half a yard. Xenia kicked off, Bell intercepted a pass in midfield and skirted end for nine as the game ended.

Football enthusiasm has been at a low ebb here for two seasons but now that the Bucs have shown signs of coming to life, Xenians may become football conscious again. Lineups:

NEW INDOOR GOLF COURSE WILL OPEN

Many Xenians are expected to swing their putters Saturday at the formal opening of the second and latest inside miniature golf course here—a nine-hole links installed by Emerson B. Curtis on the second floor directly over the Ankeny Motor Sales room on Green St.

The course is to be known as the Xenia Indoor Country Club "Wee Willie" links and efforts have been made in decorating the interior to give it a tropical atmosphere. There are white pillars down the center of the room, a profusion of palms and orange and green awnings over the windows inside. Radio music will also entertain patrons of this newest and exceedingly attractive midget links.

The greens are of concrete composition and covered by sand. Announcement is made that the course, which has been under preparation for some weeks, will be open every afternoon and evening except Sundays.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The stock market settled down to a slightly lower level of prices in the early trading today, when the usual accumulation of over-night selling orders was released.

Through the third quarter Bethlehem Steel earnings of sixty-three cents a share was in line with expectations, the discouraging survey of the steel trade situation by E. G. Grace, president, was calculated to stimulate further selling of the stock. Bethlehem broke to a new low for the year at 69, but selling pressure against the stock was not heavy and good demands was seen around 69 1/2.

Bucs Tie Greenville To End Losing Streak

OUTPLAY LEAGUE RIVAL TO EARN 6 TO 6 TIE IN CLOSING MINUTES

Bell And Adair Lead Central To Twelve First Downs To Six For Home Team; Brilliant Run Gives Greenville Its Lone Score

By PHIL FRAME
THE fourteen-game losing streak bubble of Xenia Central High School football teams over a period of the last two years has not been punctured but it was pricked by the Bucs Thursday afternoon and, as Amos and Andy say, "ain't that somethin'?"

Hardly a local grid fan is now alive who will believe it, but Central High gridders, battling against odds and crippled by injuries, fought a haughty Greenville High eleven to a 6 to 6 tie at Greenville in what had all the earmarks of a Miami Valley League upset.

Without beating around the bush, it was generally conceded the Bucs outplayed Greenville by a handsome margin and should have won. Be that as it may, the accomplishment in playing Greenville better than on even terms throughout the four quarters was worthy of comment when it is considered Xenia had lost five straight games this fall.

Flashing a belated forward pass, ripped off three first downs in a row and lugged the ball to Xenia's nine, but a five-yard penalty for offside put the ball on the four-yard line. Everhardt lost two and a couple of passes were incomplete, after which Bell intercepted a pass on fourth down and ran back to his own sixteen.

Early in the fourth quarter, the Bucs paraded from their own ten-yard line to Greenville's one-yard mark but could not score. Adair picked up four and Bell added five. Birch then hurried a pass to Price for a twenty-yard gain. Bell slipped off tackle for another first down and again shot a pass to Price, who was upset on the Greenville twenty-three. Price was hurt on the play but remained in the game. Bell broke loose for a twenty-two yard run to the one-yard line, but on the next play lost five yards. Creamer made one fourth down Bell heaved a pass to Kinsey in the end zone but Bob muffed it and the ball went to Greenville on the twenty.

Greenville punted to the forty-three. Xenia immediately renewed its overhead attack and Bell passed to Kinsey for a twenty-yard gain. Captain Adair then made a well-nigh impossible catch of Bell's short pass, making it first down on the ten. Bell hit the line for five, then three yards and on the next play plunged over the goal line. With the game in the balance and victory depending upon the extra point, the Bucs faked a place kick with Bell attempting to run the ball across. He failed by half a yard. Xenia kicked off, Bell intercepted a pass in midfield and skirted end for nine as the game ended.

Football enthusiasm has been at a low ebb here for two seasons but now that the Bucs have shown signs of coming to life, Xenians may become football conscious again. Lineups:

Xenia (6)	Pos. Greenville (6)

COUPLE INJURED IN COLLISION OF CARS

William Dugdale, 55, of 1378 Bellefair Ave., Springfield, is confined in Springfield City Hospital with serious injuries suffered when the auto in which he and his wife, Ellen, were riding, upset after a collision with another machine at a street intersection in Fairfield Thursday morning. Dugdale received a broken nose and a skull fracture. Mrs. Dugdale, who sustained lacerations about the head and suffered from shock, was also removed to the hospital. It was reported that Dugdale swerved his auto at Main and South St. to avoid collision with a car driven by Linda Myers, of Wright Field, and that the rear end of Dugdale's machine was struck by another car and was overturned. Myers escaped injury in the accident.

Stokowski is Father. Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Stokowski are announcing the birth of a daughter, October 26, in New York City. Mr. Stokowski is conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, which will present its second radio broadcast of the season Sunday, November 16.

Editor The Gazette:

DIRIGIBLE-BLIMP

Anyone desiring an attractive week end would do well to visit an airport one of these sunny days. Near Akron, Ohio, is an airport and the largest hangar in the world is at this airport. A hangar is a shed for housing aerial vehicles. The doors of this hangar opens very cleverly electrically. A dirigible is a steerable, self-propelled balloon, an airship, usually cigar-shaped, and of great size. The Goodyear Rubber Company of Akron is working on a large zeppelin, which will be the largest in the world—even greater than the Graf Zeppelin. This Zeppelin Akron is working on will be filled with helium which is not at all inflammable and not dangerous. This new Zeppelin is at one end of the hangar and in the center is a beautiful large American flag which makes the interior very attractive. The Goodyear Rubber Company has two baby blimps. The Puritan and the Mayflower. To gaze upon these dirigibles ascending heavenward with their passengers is a sight to cause one to marvel. One can gaze for hours in wonderment as they ascend filled with people and descending to earth unloading. One will forget where one is—and almost forget the midday eats, so marvelous, so fascinating—something like gazing upon Niagara Falls or Lookout Mountain, Chattanooga, Tenn., where the battle above the clouds was fought at time of Civil War—or gaze on any of the wonders and beauties God made for our enjoyment. While the soldiers in blue and gray were killing each other on this mountain, a storm was raging below the fighting, thunder, lightning, rain and mud. This mountain was wild then—wild turkey, bear, deer and razorback hogs the monarchs—today the telephone, electricity, radio and sometimes an airship is seen flying over this same spot. The trees and wild flowers went with the wild creations to make way for beautiful homes, church and school.

The October 5th catastrophe in France is appalling as is all air disasters. If all the pilots while in training would take into consideration the dangers of intoxication on these flights, as the pilot's life as well as the passengers are in jeopardy when using intoxicants. Before the pilots are privileged to license a very strict pledge should be taken from each one. By insidious it is claimed that comfort is assured at very high altitude if using liquors but the opposite takes place. The brain becomes fogged, chills and dizziness follow. The pilots cannot steer the planes, failure to control disaster, death to say nothing about the destruction of the planes.

DOCTOR PERSONALLY GOT SUCH Wonderful Relief From Flaxolyn He Is Happy to Give Public Endorsement

Dr. B. B. Smith of Clinton, N. C., who praises Flaxolyn so very highly because he has witnessed results in his own case.

Searched years for a satisfactory preparation to help his own case.

Of all the messages received by Dr. Luntz, the doctor responsible for the development of Flaxolyn, there is none quite as touching as the interesting letter received from Dr. B. B. Smith, a prominent retired physician. "I have just about finished, personally, 30 days' use of Flaxolyn," reads Dr. Smith's letter. "I began its use as an experiment for the relief of gas in the bowels and colon which had distressed me greatly for some time. "I had tried many different remedies and resorted to all sorts of means, including massages, etc., without satisfactory relief. I am very happy to say that I have found in Flaxolyn the results for which I had searched for years. I am greatly improved by the use of Flaxolyn and gladly recommend it to everyone as a reliable and dependable aid for conditions of occasional constipation, and other troubles due to faulty elimination of body wastes."

German Physician of Great Prominence Applauds Formula

Professor Dr. Remy Hirsch, one of the most distinguished physicians in Germany, and formerly head of the Nervous Disorders Division of Berlin's largest hospital, is one of a number of physicians who have been retained to give their frank opinions of Flaxolyn and who have placed their approval upon it. Dr. Hirsch is highly enthusiastic over the effectiveness of Flaxolyn. He calls Flaxolyn not only a safe and pleasant formula, but a powerful one. Dr. Juan Pallares of the University Hospital in Valencia, Spain, says: "I find Flaxolyn superior to any formula I know for that vicious ailment, occasional constipation, with its distasteful effects upon the system, through repeated neglect. I am satisfied Flaxolyn has no habit-forming tendency. It has excellent corrective power. I endorse it and congratulate you."

Flaxolyn Free If It Fails

Flaxolyn contains no drastic or habit-forming drugs; it is rich in sun-dried and air-dried herbs, effectively combined with highly approved vegetable extracts, bile salts and organic medicinals. Have no hesitancy in trying it. The whole world contributes to the potency of Flaxolyn. In it are Senna Leaves from Arabia, Licorice Roots from sunny Spain, "Sacred Bark" from California, Buchu Leaves from Africa, Sarsaparilla Roots from Mexico—and other important ingredients from the five continents. By all means tear out the coupon and hand it to your druggist, who will be very happy to redeem it so that you may give Flaxolyn the trial it merits.

COUPLE INJURED IN COLLISION OF CARS

William Dugdale, 55, of 1378 Bellefair Ave., Springfield, is confined in Springfield City Hospital with serious injuries suffered when the auto in which he and his wife, Ellen, were riding, upset after a collision with another machine at a street intersection in Fairfield Thursday morning. Dugdale received a broken nose and a skull fracture. Mrs. Dugdale, who sustained lacerations about the head and suffered from shock, was also removed to the hospital. It was reported that Dugdale swerved his auto at Main and South Sts. to avert collision with a car driven by Linda Myers, of Wright Field, and that the rear end of Dugdale's machine was struck by another car and was overturned. Myers escaped injury in the accident.

Editor The Gazette:
DIRIGIBLE-BLIMP
Anyone desiring an attractive week end would do well to visit an airport one of these sunny days. Near Akron, Ohio, is an airport and the largest hangar in the world is at this airport. A hangar is a shed for housing aerial vehicles. The doors of this hangar open very cleverly electrically. A dirigible is a steerable, self-propelled balloon, an airship, usually cigar-shaped, and of great size. The Goodyear Rubber Company of Akron is working on a large zeppelin, which will be the largest in the world—even greater than the Graf Zeppelin. This Zeppelin Akron is working on will be filled with helium which is not at all inflammable and not dangerous. This new Zeppelin is at one end of the hangar and in the center is a beautiful large American flag which makes the interior very attractive. The Goodyear Rubber Company has two baby blimps. The Puritan and the Mayflower. To gaze upon these dirigibles ascending heavenward with their passengers is a sight to cause one to marvel. One can gaze for hours in wonderment as they ascend filled with people and descending to earth unloading. One will forget where one is—and almost forget the midday eats, so marvelous, so fascinating—something like gazing upon Niagara Falls or Lookout Mountain, Chattanooga, Tenn., where the battle above the clouds was fought at time of Civil War—or gaze on any of the wonders and beauties God made for our enjoyment. While the soldiers in blue and gray were killing each other on this mountain, a storm was raging below the fighting, thunder, lightning, rain and mud. This mountain was wild then—wild turkey, bear, deer and razorback hogs the monarchs—today the telephone, electricity, radio and sometimes an airship is seen flying over this same spot. The trees and wild flowers went with the wild creations to make way for beautiful homes, church and school.

The October 5th catastrophe in France is appalling as is all air disasters. If all the pilots while in training would take into consideration the dangers of intoxication on these flights, as the pilot's life as well as the passengers are in jeopardy when using intoxicants. Before the pilots are privileged to license a very strict pledge should be taken from each one. By the insidious it is claimed that comfort is assured at very high altitude if using liquors but the opposite takes place. The brain becomes befogged, chills and dizziness follow. The pilots cannot steer the planes, failure to control disaster, death to say nothing about the destruction of the planes.

DOCTOR PERSONALLY GOT SUCH Wonderful Relief From Flaxolyn He Is Happy to Give Public Endorsement

Dr. B. B. Smith of Clinton, N. C., who praises Flaxolyn so very highly because he has witnessed results in his own case.

Searched years for a satisfactory preparation to help his own case.

Of all the messages received by Dr. Luntz, the doctor responsible for the development of Flaxolyn, there is none quite as touching as the interesting letter received from Dr. B. B. Smith, a prominent retired physician.

"I have just about finished, personally, 30 days' use of Flaxolyn," reads Dr. Smith's letter. "I began its use as an experiment for the relief of gas in the bowels and colon which had distressed me greatly for some time.

"I had tried many different remedies and resorted to all sorts of means, including massages, etc., without satisfactory relief. I am very happy to say that I have found in Flaxolyn the results for which I had searched for years. I am greatly improved by the use of Flaxolyn and gladly recommend it to everyone as a reliable and dependable aid for conditions of occasional constipation, and other troubles due to faulty elimination of body wastes."

German Physician of Great Prominence Applauds Formula

Professor Dr. Remy Hirsch, one of the most distinguished physicians in Germany, and formerly head of the Nervous Disorders Division of Berlin's largest hospital, is one of a number of physicians who have been retained to give their frank opinions of Flaxolyn and who have placed their approval upon it.

Dr. Hirsch is highly enthusiastic over the effectiveness of Flaxolyn. He calls Flaxolyn not only a safe and pleasant formula, but a powerful one.

Dr. Juan Pallares of the University Hospital in Valencia, Spain, says: "I find Flaxolyn superior to any formula I know for that vicious ailment, occasional constipation, with its dastardly effects upon the system, through repeated neglect. I am satisfied Flaxolyn has no habit-forming tendency. It has excellent corrective power. I endorse it and congratulate you."

Flaxolyn Free If It Fails

Flaxolyn contains no drastic or habit-forming drugs; it is rich in sun-dried and air-dried herbs, effectively combined with highly approved vegetable extracts, bile salts and organic medicinals. Have no hesitancy in trying it.

The whole world contributes to the potency of Flaxolyn. In it are Senna Leaves from Arabia, Licorice Roots from sunny Spain, "Sacred Bark" from California, Buchu Leaves from Africa, Sarsaparilla Roots from Mexico—and other important ingredients from the five continents.

By all means tear out the coupon and hand it to your druggist, who will be very happy to redeem it so that you may give Flaxolyn the trial it merits.

AMENDMENT WINS SUPPORT OF SCHOOL MEN AT NEXT ELECTION

A favorable vote on the proposed amendment to Section 9, Article 12, Ohio Constitution, at the election next Tuesday is vital to the interests of schools and taxpayers in general, according to H. C. Aultman, county superintendent of schools.

Superintendent Aultman's support of the amendment is based on the fact that the amendment will open up sources of revenue to the schools which will be necessary for continued operation in case the legislature reduces the tax rate available for school purposes at its next session, a prospect that is expected.

"For some time school people and taxpayers have been urging that the rate for support of schools be reduced one-half or more so that the maximum rate for school purposes would not exceed five mills," said Mr. Aultman. "Should this be done at the coming session of the legislature it would be necessary to find school support from sources other than a direct tax levy on visible property."

The amendment reads as follows: "Not less than 50 per centum of the income and inheritance taxes that may be collected by the state shall be returned to the county, school district, city, village or township in which said income or inheritance tax originated or to any of the same, as may be provided by law."

Mr. Aultman points out that "should this amendment fail it would be impossible for the school districts to receive any money arising from inheritance or income taxes which may be provided by the Ohio Legislature. Should this amendment carry it will have the effect of reducing school taxes and school rates because it opens up sources of revenue without making an additional levy. Some schools have made levies as high as the law will permit, such levies being necessary in order to keep school open and running the full measure of time. If this new source of revenue can be opened by a favorable vote on the amendment in question, it will afford relief to boards of education and taxpayers in many school districts, especially where income and inheritance taxes collected by the state involve funds of consequence. We therefore feel warranted in urging every voter to protect the schools and welfare of boys and girls by supporting this amendment."

SUNDAY IS ADVANCE REGISTRATION DAY OF CHURCH SCHOOL

Next Sunday is set as the first advance registration day for the standard teachers' training school of Xenia, which opens Monday evening, November 17, at the First Presbyterian Church, Market and King Sts., and continues for five days, with a recognition service, Sunday, November 23 at the First M. E. Church with Dr. W. R. McChesney, Cedarville, preaching. At this Sunday evening service credit slips will be presented to all who finished the courses.

The Rev. A. H. Beardsley, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, is general chairman of the school; Carl Benner, member of the faculty at Central High School, will be dean and Miss Helen Nichols, registrar.

The registration fee will be one dollar. Total cost of the course will be the registration fee plus the cost of the books needed in the course. Goals are to be set by the various Sunday Schools and churches next Sunday for the number to attend from each school.

The courses offered are: "A Christian's View of the Old Testament," taught by Prof. E. E. Flacy of Wittenberg College; "Primary Principles and Methods," taught by Miss Dorothy E. LaCroix, of the board of education of the Methodist Church; "Principles of Teaching," by Prof. A. J. Hostetler, of the normal department of Cedarville College and "Church Administration" by Prof. C. E. Ashcraft of Bonebrake Theological Seminary, Dayton.

FAILURE OF SCHOOL LEVY WOULD ELIMINATE MANY STUDIES, SAID

Failure of the five mill levy for school purposes at the polls next Tuesday will mean abandonment of important departments and curricula of others, Xenia city school officials have determined.

Schools now operate under this levy and are asking voters to renew this source of revenue by a favorable vote next Tuesday. Should it fail to carry school authorities say it will mean the abandonment of industrial arts, domestic science, art and physical education as part of the school program and result in greatly reduced activities in the music and commercial departments.

School authorities also point out that failure of the levy will mean the loss of all extra-curricular activities such as debate, dramatics, clubs and all social groups while athletics and other attractive features of modern education will suffer greatly.

"Parents cannot afford to see their schools crippled," said a statement issued by the public schools Friday. "It is unfair to local children to take from them their school interests and opportunities and to fail to teach them the worthy use of their leisure time. Leisure time, is not properly directed by forces within the school, can only breed crime and delinquency."

They point out that a favorable vote only renews the levy and in no way increases school taxes over the present amount being paid.

THE MAN WITH THE
"HAIR-TRIGGER" TEMPER

HE WAS irritable at the office, and grouchy at home. His enemies increased, his friends became fewer. Then one day his doctor told him the truth. He had been handicapped by constipation for years. It had brought headaches and constantly irritating ills to make him "touchy." It had stolen his energy and good nature.

His doctor suggested eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly. And in a few days he was a changed man, cheery, ambitious—and on the road to success and happiness.

Constipation is so unnecessary it can be overcome by eating delicious Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This delightful, ready-to-eat cereal has been improved in both texture and taste.

Two tablespoonfuls of Improved in Texture and Taste

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily are guaranteed to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. Use this natural method and avoid the dangers of habit-forming pills and drugs.

Serve ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, with fruits or honey added. Use in cooking too. Sold by all grocers in the familiar red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

AMENDMENT WINS SUPPORT OF SCHOOL MEN AT NEXT ELECTION

A favorable vote on the proposed amendment to Section 9, Article 12, Ohio Constitution, at the election next Tuesday is vital to the interests of schools and taxpayers in general, according to H. C. Aultman, county superintendent of schools.

Superintendent Aultman's support of the amendment is based on the fact that the amendment will open up sources of revenue to the schools which will be necessary for continued operation in case the legislature reduces the tax rate available for school purposes at its next session, a prospect that is expected.

SUNDAY IS ADVANCE REGISTRATION DAY OF CHURCH SCHOOL

Next Sunday is set as the first advance registration day for the standard teachers' training school of Xenia, which opens Monday evening, November 17, at the First Presbyterian Church, Market and King Sts., and continues for five days, with a recognition service, Sunday, November 23 at the First M. E. Church with Dr. W. R. McChesney, Cedarville, preaching. At this Sunday evening service credit slips will be presented to all who finished the courses.

The Rev. A. H. Beardsley, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, is general chairman of the school; Carl Benner, member of the faculty at Central High School, will be dean and Miss Helen Nichols, registrar. The registration fee will be one dollar. Total cost of the course will be the registration fee plus the cost of the books needed in the course. Goals are to be set by the various Sunday Schools and churches next Sunday for the number to attend from each school. The courses offered are: "A Christian's View of the Old Testament," taught by Prof. E. E. Plack of Wittenberg College; "Primary Principles and Methods," taught by Miss Dorothy E. LaCroix, of the board of education of the Methodist Church; "Principles of Teaching," by Prof. A. J. Hostetter, of the normal department of Cedarville College and "Church Administration," by Prof. C. E. Ashcraft of Bonebrake Theological Seminary, Dayton.

FAILURE OF SCHOOL LEVY WOULD ELIMINATE MANY STUDIES, SAID

Failure of the five mill levy for school purposes at the polls next Tuesday will mean abandonment of important departments and curtailment of others, Xenia city school officials have determined.

Schools now operate under this levy and are asking voters to renew this source of revenue by a favorable vote next Tuesday. Should it fail to carry school authorities say it will mean the abandonment of industrial arts, domestic science, art and physical education as part of the school program and result in greatly reduced activities in the music and commercial departments.

School authorities also point out that failure of the levy will mean the loss of all extra-curricular activities such as debate, dramatics, clubs and all social groups while athletics and other attractive features of modern education will suffer greatly.

"Parents cannot afford to see their schools crippled," said a statement issued by the public schools Friday. "It is unfair to local children to take from them their school interests and opportunities and to fail to teach them the worthy use of their leisure time. Leisure time, is not properly directed by forces within the school, can only breed crime and delinquency."

They point out that a favorable vote only renews the levy and in no way increases school taxes over the present amount being paid.

THE MAN WITH THE "HAIR-TRIGGER" TEMPER

He was irritable at the office, and grouchy at home. His enemies increased, his friends became fewer. Then one day his doctor told him the truth. He had been handicapped by constipation for years. It had brought headaches and constantly irritating ills to make him "touchy." It had stolen his energy and good nature.

His doctor suggested eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly. And in a few days he was a changed man, cheery, ambitious—and on the road to success and happiness.

Constipation is so unnecessary it can be overcome by eating delicious Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This delightful, ready-to-eat cereal has been improved in both texture and taste.

Two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily are guaranteed to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. Use this natural method and avoid the dangers of habit-forming pills and drugs.

Serve ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, with fruits or honey added. Use in cooking too. Sold by all grocers in the familiar red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

VEHICULAR TUNNEL NOW LINKS U. S. WITH CANADA

After November 3, persons crossing the international boundary, at Detroit, to Windsor, Ontario, will have the option of going over, under, or through the Detroit river, to Canada. A new mile-long tunnel, with its 22-foot roadway, has just been completed, and is the first of its kind to connect two nations. For the last century ferry service across the river has been available and, last year, the Ambassador bridge was completed. Photos show, top, view of the tunnel near the American end; lower left, switchboard regulating lighting and ventilation. Meters show amount of air going into tunnel, amount of carbon monoxide in the air at any given point and emergency devices showing warning lights can be flashed when the air becomes the least bit impure; sketch is artist's conception of a cross section of the tunnel; inset, Col. Burnside R. Value, executive engineer in charge of construction.

Matricide Sentenced

Royal S. MacDonald being condemned to prison for life in a Jersey City, N. J., court for shooting to death his mother after an argument over a girl. MacDonald stood in the shadow of the electric chair until the girl, Margaret Hundley, of Bayonne, N. J., talked him into changing his plea of not guilty to one of non vult on the first degree murder charge. Judge Egan branded the youth as "lower than a serpent."

Next picture shows Booth (arrow) surrounded. Third picture shows him being brought down. Bottom picture, Booth lies unconscious under this piled-up heap of Army players.

FOUR HELD FOR CHILD'S DEATH

Although she is not charged with the crime, Mrs. Eva Bailey has been held at New Martinsville, W. Va., as a material witness in the slaying of her three-year-old daughter, Garland Bailes, during a drunken orgy on an island, opposite Grandview, O. Four men, accused of the crime, are alleged to have twisted the child to death because she "bothered" them. The mother, who was in a drunken stupor, did not know what had occurred to Garland until next morning, police say she told them. The men are, top row, Clyde McBee, left, and James Dunn; below, Charlie Henry, left, and his brother, Ray, being questioned by Sheriff L. B. Snyder.

BRYAN IS AGAIN A CANDIDATE

These photos of the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, in Nebraska, Charles W. Bryan, brother of the late William Jennings Bryan, who is running for governor for the fourth time, show him with some of his pure-bred cows and his two grandchildren, son and daughter of Mrs. R. H. Harnsberger, state representative. Bryan owns 640 acres of land which enables him to indulge his hobby of raising pure-bred hogs and cattle. He says he will run for governor every year until he is elected.

INDIAN CHIEF HELD AS SLAYER

Chief Red Wing, circus dancer (left), is said to have admitted slaying Evangeline Cavazos, of San Antonio, Texas, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cavazos, after kidnapping her from the dressing room of her mother while the latter was making her appearance in the arena of the Cuban shows at New Braunfels.

Accuses Bank 'Trust' Throat of Nye Witness Cut on Eve of Inquiry

General J. S. Coxey, who led the famous "Coxey's Army" march upon Washington, D. C., in 1894, photographed while visiting the capital to confer with Secretary of Commerce Lamont and others on the unemployment situation. This time the General descended upon Washington all alone. He says the banking "trust" of New York is responsible for the present dearth of work.

James N. Cox, of Cookeville, telephone executive who came to Nashville, Tenn., as a witness before the Nye investigating committee, is in a serious condition in a hospital following serious cuts on his throat. Mr. Cox was to have been questioned by the Campaign Funds Committee.

On S.S. Lesson

Wm. Perkins

Doubt may be honest as well as insincere; it is important that we discriminate between the two that we may deal justly and helpfully with one another. Too much distrust has been charged against Thomas because he doubted; it was such as he that Jesus was pleased to own as one of his disciples.

V. 14. "Then Jesus therefore said unto them plainly, Lazarus is dead." It was only two months before Christ's crucifixion; there was a chance to impart a lesson the right attitude of death; Jesus thought of Lazarus as asleep.

V. 15. "And I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, to the intent that ye may believe; nevertheless let us go unto him." He was about to perform a stupendous miracle; this would help his followers to a larger faith in him. Here also is the lesson of immortality as seen in the words, "Let us go unto him." Lazarus' life had not ended.

V. 16. "Thomas, therefore, who is called Didymus, said unto his fellow disciples let us also go that we may die with him." Thomas' doubt consisted of thoughts of the death of Christ whose life was seriously threatened at Jerusalem and felt they might as well give up; but his doubt would not allow a denial of Christ—it was too honest for that.

V. 17. "Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whether thou goest, how know we the way." Jesus had been telling them of the place he was going to prepare and that he would come again to take his followers with him. How natural it is for us at the hour of death, though we know there is a heaven, to ask "how know we the way?" This was an honest inquiry, having an element of doubt in it.

V. 18. "Jesus said unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life; no one cometh unto the Father but by me." Many seek God through ritual and religious observances; others through good works. None of these find God. Thomas found God through Christ, a living faith in a living Lord.

V. 19. "If ye know me, ye would have known my father also; for henceforth ye know him and have seen him." God is like Christ; to know Him one must know Christ.

V. 20. "Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life; no one cometh unto the Father but by me." Many seek God through ritual and religious observances; others through good works. None of these find God. Thomas found God through Christ, a living faith in a living Lord.

V. 21. "If ye know me, ye would have known my father also; for henceforth ye know him and have seen him." God is like Christ; to know Him one must know Christ.

V. 22. "Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life; no one cometh unto the Father but by me." Many seek God through ritual and religious observances; others through good works. None of these find God. Thomas found God through Christ, a living faith in a living Lord.

V. 23. "If ye know me, ye would have known my father also; for henceforth ye know him and have seen him." God is like Christ; to know Him one must know Christ.

V. 24. "Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life; no one cometh unto the Father but by me." Many seek God through ritual and religious observances; others through good works. None of these find God. Thomas found God through Christ, a living faith in a living Lord.

V. 25. "If ye know me, ye would have known my father also; for henceforth ye know him and have seen him." God is like Christ; to know Him one must know Christ.

V. 26. "Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life; no one cometh unto the Father but by me." Many seek God through ritual and religious observances; others through good works. None of these find God. Thomas found God through Christ, a living faith in a living Lord.

V. 27. "If ye know me, ye would have known my father also; for henceforth ye know him and have seen him." God is like Christ; to know Him one must know Christ.

V. 41. "If ye know me, ye would have known my father also; for henceforth ye know him and have seen him." God is like Christ; to know Him one must know Christ.

who came to reveal him. This implies a faithful study of the Bible, the proper interpretation of Christ's plans and principles as worked out in history; a proper conception of him as lived in the lives of his children.

V. 24. "But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came." How much Thomas missed by not attending the meeting of the disciples in which Christ revealed himself as the risen Lord!

V. 25. "The other disciples therefore said unto him, we have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, except I see in his hands the print of the nails and put my finger into the print of the nails and put my hand into his side, I will not believe." This is the verse that has given us the name "Doubting Thomas." He belonged to the class that would base his faith on scientific research, upon reason, upon facts; a follower of the Lord needs all the facts he can get, needs all the reason he has and open-mindedness for the last word from science, but that is not enough, for life is mysterious and to live at one's best, we go on a little further making ventures of faith in God.

Vs. 26, 27. "And after eight days again his disciples were within and Thomas was with them. Then he said to Thomas, reach hither thy finger and touch my hands; and reach hither thy hand and put it into my side; and be not faithless but believing." Jesus was pleased to present the facts, let him use his reason.

V. 28. "Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and my God." Evidently Thomas did not lay his hand into the Master's side; the case was too evident and he did not need such physical facts.

V. 29. "Jesus saith unto him, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed. Blessed are they that have not seen and yet have believed." Here is a special benediction for His followers today.

V. 30. "Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and my God." Evidently Thomas did not lay his hand into the Master's side; the case was too evident and he did not need such physical facts.

But he said unto them, except I see in his hands the print of the nails and put my finger into the print of the nails and put my hand into his side, I will not believe." This is the verse that has given us the name "Doubting Thomas." He belonged to the class that would base his faith on scientific research, upon reason, upon facts; a follower of the Lord needs all the facts he can get, needs all the reason he has and open-mindedness for the last word from science, but that is not enough, for life is mysterious and to live at one's best, we go on a little further making ventures of faith in God.

Vs. 26, 27. "And after eight days again his disciples were within and Thomas was with them. Then he said to Thomas, reach hither thy finger and see my hands; and reach hither thy hand and put it into my side; and he not faithless but believing." Jesus was pleased to present the facts, let him use his reason.

V. 28. "Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and my God." Evidently Thomas did not lay his hand into the Master's side; the case was too evident and he did not need such physical facts.

V. 29. "Jesus saith unto him, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed. Blessed are they that have not seen and yet have believed." Here is a special benediction for His followers today.

V. 30. "Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and my God." Evidently Thomas did not lay his hand into the Master's side; the case was too evident and he did not need such physical facts.

V. 31. "Jesus saith unto him, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed. Blessed are they that have not seen and yet have believed." Here is a special benediction for His followers today.

How make the program of missionary education most effective in lower departments of the church school?

The three important elements in missionary education are knowledge, attitudes and practice.

Proper knowledge of the life of those in other lands is essential for a friendly world attitude; realistic stories with similar experiences to ours ought to be presented; much knowledge can be imparted by dramatizing stories; folk stories and songs furnish a valuable bond; knowledge of people of other lands may be gained by having people of different nationalities presented. Intelligent interest in others needs to be aroused to the place where there will be naturally developed a program of sharing which may often be expressed in giving money to definite missionary education by the thought fostered in connection with missionary education by the thought that those in other lands are children of God and members of His family.

- (Continued from Page One)

"restore, economy in government, put an end to disregard of personal liberty and constitutional rights in the administration of laws, undertake actual relief for Ohio farmers by means of effective state measures favoring agriculture," and to use his influence in an effort to see that the new tax system shall be fair and equitable to all classes of property owners."

Managers of the campaigns of the two major political parties have voiced their predictions of victory. Henry G. Brunner of Mansfield, chairman of the Democratic state executive committee, expects the Democrats to sweep the Buckeye state next Tuesday by a "landslide" vote. He estimates the Democratic majority in excess of 150,000 votes.

Earl R. Lewis of St. Clairsville, G. O. P. state campaign manager, says Brunner's claims are "ridiculous." Lewis insists that the Republicans will win all state offices by "a substantial majority" and "will gain" at least one seat in the national house of representatives.

The present Ohio delegation in congress includes nineteen Republican congressmen and three Democrats.

RESENT USE OF OUTSIDE LABOR ON OFFICE SITE

conference with Charles Jones, secretary to Governor Cooper.

After a hurried conference, Jones declared that he would conduct an immediate investigation into the facts of the situation and until they were available nothing would be done one way or the other regarding work on the new office building.

The seventy-five imported laborers were all that started work on the new building this morning. Construction officials in charge of the work said that they had planned to take on more workers from time to time.

Adjutant General Reynolds said that his offices have been bombarded with applications for work on the construction of the new office building. Hundreds of petitions have been received, he said, and his offices have been literally swamped with requests for work.

The work was started following the decision of Judge Charles A. Leach in Franklin County Common Pleas Court yesterday that the building commission was within its rights in selecting Georgia marble as construction material.

The suit, brought by Thomas W. Dent, of Columbus, was the last legal obstacle in the way of the construction of the building.

Governor Myers V. Cooper, who was in Oxford yesterday, telegraphed to Harry Hake, of Cincinnati, chief architect of the building, when he was notified of Judge Leach's decision. The governor suggested "that this work begin at the earliest possible moment, as it will afford employment to hundreds of men."

"We have now whipped the final political injunction suit filed against public improvement projects," the governor said, "we will start work immediately upon this monumental structure which will give work to 1,000 men for more than a year. There will be no further delays."

Warner P. Simpson, a member of the building commission, said: "The decision means that soon 1,000 Columbus laborers will find employment to keep 1,000 families off the charity lists, for the contractors have agreed to use local laborers with families established in the city."

Attorney General Bettman pointed out that state offices are now located in nineteen different buildings in Columbus "most of them firetraps and even the citizens of Columbus do not know where these state departments are."

The river front site is located in what was once called the city's slum district fifty or sixty years ago. All of the buildings are old, brick structures that have not been occupied for years.

FORMER XENIAN IS CALLED BY DEATH

- Friends and relatives in Xenia and Greene County have received word of the death of Eugene Barney, 70, formerly of Xenia, which occurred at his home on Huffman Ave., Dayton, Thursday night at 11 o'clock. Death was due to a complication of diseases.

His widow, who survives, was formerly Miss Mary McClellan, near Xenia. The Barney family moved from Xenia to Dayton twenty years ago. Three sons, Harry, Ben and Clyde, and two daughters, Edna and Mary, all of Dayton, survive. Funeral services will be held at the home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

REV. J. C. WARNOCK REMOVED BY DEATH

- Funeral services for the Rev. J. C. Warnock, 80, former pastor of the United Presbyterian Church at Cedarville, who died in Pittsburgh, Pa., Thursday morning, will be held at the U. P. Church in Cedarville, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be made in Woodland cemetery, this city. The remains will arrive in Xenia Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock and will be taken to Cedarville.

The Rev. Mr. Warnock left Cedarville thirty-five years ago after serving as pastor of the church there for seven years. At the time of his death he was pastor of the West Delhi U. P. Church at Delhi, N. Y. Death was due to pneumonia. He is survived by two daughters, Miss Lucille Warnock, public librarian at Lincoln, Neb., and Miss Genevieve Warnock, librarian at Pittsburgh and a son, Harper, Coal Valley, Ill. His wife and a son, Dales and a daughter, Ruth, preceded him in death.

M'CULLOCH AND COOPER WIN VOTE

- Governor Myers V. Cooper, Republican candidate for re-election, and United States Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch, Republican nominee for this office, were given overwhelming majorities over their Democratic opponents in a recent straw vote taken at Wilberforce University, according to an announcement received from Republican state campaign headquarters at Columbus.

The vote among the students resulted as follows: for governor—Cooper, 587; White, 15; for United States senator—McCulloch, 401; Bulkley, 182.

RESENT USE OF OUTSIDE LABOR ON OFFICE SITE

conference with Charles Jones, secretary to Governor Cooper.

After a hurried conference, Jones declared that he would conduct an immediate investigation into the facts of the situation and until they were available nothing would be done one way or the other regarding work on the new office building.

The seventy-five imported laborers were all that started work on the new building this morning. Construction officials in charge of the work said that they had planned to take on more workers from time to time.

Adjutant General Reynolds said that his office has been bombarded with applications for work on the construction of the new office building. Hundreds of petitions have been received, he said, and his office has been literally swamped with requests for work.

The work was started following the decision of Judge Charles A. Leach in Franklin County Common Pleas Court yesterday that the building commission was within its rights in selecting Georgia marble as construction material.

The suit, brought by Thomas W. Dent, of Columbus, was the last legal obstacle in the way of the construction of the building.

Governor Myers Y. Cooper, who was in Oxford yesterday, telegraphed to Harry Hake, of Cincinnati, when he was notified of Judge Leach's decision. The governor suggested "that this work begin at the earliest possible moment, as it will afford employment to hundreds of men."

"We have now whipped the final political injunction suit filed against public improvement projects," the governor said, "we will start work immediately upon this monumental structure which will give work to 1,000 men for more than a year. There will be no further delays."

Warner P. Simpson, a member of the building commission, said: "The decision means that soon 1,000 Columbus laborers will find employment to keep 1,000 families off the charity lists for the year, the proceeds of which will be used for buying books, pictures, etc., for future Latin classes."

The first regular meeting was held October 28. An interesting program was given under the supervision of Mary Waddle, chairman of the program committee.

The club voted to pay one cent dues. A fudge sale will be given Tuesday, November 4 and perhaps a play will be given later in the year, the proceeds of which will be used for buying books, pictures, etc., for future Latin classes.

The organization of the first period sophomore Latin club was held September 30. Officers elected were: president, Priscilla Linkhart; vice president, Janet Frazer; treasurer, Virginia Kinsey; secretary, Irma Van Horn.

Friends and relatives in Xenia and Greene County have received word of the death of Eugene Barney, 70, formerly of Xenia, which occurred at his home on Huffman Ave., Dayton, Thursday night at 11 o'clock. Death was due to a complication of diseases.

His widow, who survives, was formerly Miss Mary McClellan, near Xenia. The Barney family moved from Xenia to Dayton twenty years ago. Three sons, Harry, Ben and Clyde and two daughters, Edna and Mary, all of Dayton, survive. Funeral services will be held at the home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Managers of the campaigns of the two major political parties have voiced their predictions of victory. Henry G. Brunner of Mansfield, chairman of the Democratic state executive committee, expects the Democrats to sweep the Buckeye state next Tuesday by a "landslide" vote. He estimates the Democratic majority in excess of 150,000 votes.

Earl R. Lewis of St. Clairsville, G. O. P. state campaign manager, says Brunner's claims are "ridiculous." Lewis insists that the Republicans will win all state offices by "a substantial majority" and "will gain" at least one seat in the national house of representatives.

The present Ohio delegation in congress includes nineteen Republican congressmen and three Democrats.

Lieutenant Commander Weed of the Naval Air Forces, who has already written two air stories, is writing a third for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. His others were "The Flying Fleet" in which Ramon Novarro starred and the Columbia production "Dirigible."

Jack Gilbert is slated to start in the new story, this being the type of role that Metro is seeking for Jack. Warner Brothers are also said to be contemplating an aviation story, embracing all branches of the service.

Will Rogers made a speech at the premiere of "The Big Trail" in Hollywood the other night that it worth repeating. He followed the picture and stopped the audience dead in its tracks.

Will introduced Mayor Rolph of San Francisco.

"They chose me," he said, "because I am the contact man be-rected both of these stories. One thing about "Up the River" at the Bijou Friday and Saturday, it's brand new, since it is among the list of new Fox pictures booked for this theater since these film were made available to the Bijou. It is a comedy featuring Spencer Tracy, Claire Luce, Warren Hymer, Humphrey Bogart and William Collier Sr., and unusual because it presents Joan "Cherie" Lawes, the little daughter of Warden E. Lawes of Sing Sing Prison, New York.

Since things are quiet at Universal Jeanette Loff will be loaned to Tiffany to play opposite Rex Lease in "The Midnight Stage." She was a stellar performer in the Paul Whiteman Revue.

CHAPTER 27

When he came downstairs the next morning he found the explorer up before him, and pacing restlessly up and down the dew-laden garden.

"What do you mean to do about Prince Pozolevsky?" Armstrong asked abruptly as soon as the inspector was within earshot.

"Nothing for the moment, except have inquiries made into his past life."

"You intend to let him get away then?"

"Certainly not! But I can't arrest a man simply because his initials happen to correspond with those on the knife."

"I should think that, added to what came out at the inquest, would be quite enough to go on."

"Armstrong focused his piercing eyes on the inspector.

"I shall have to attend to my job as I see fit," replied the inspector a bit haughtily.

"Oh, it isn't that. Don't be offended! But if you aren't going to do anything, I am! You can't object to that."

"Certainly not, Mr. Armstrong. If you can bring any light to bear on the case I shall be pleased."

"You're sceptical, I see! Well, by night I shall hope to have something definite which will change your view."

"I wish you luck!"

Bruce Armstrong looked calculatingly at the detective. He wasn't a bad fellow at all, he decided; only rather pig-headed. It was a case of the short-sighted vision of the civilized man against the far-seeingness of a savage, for the explorer, because of his years in the African jungles and his friendly associations with the natives, considered himself something of a savage.

"Well, let's have a friendly breakfast," he said good-humoredly. "Then I must hie me off to London."

"To call on his Royal Highness?" the inspector inquired with a hint of amusement.

"To find out about him."

"And you expect to have your incriminating information by night?"

"You think I'm crazy, don't you?"

"As the men went into the breakfast-room. "Well, only remember, inspector, he laughs best who laughs last."

"I will remember," said the inspector quietly.

Breakfast was a silent, hurried affair, for the explorer had only ten minutes before he must leave for the station. He waved a jovial farewell to the detective, and settled himself back in the motor for the three miles to the station. He hadn't formed any very definite idea as to how to proceed to make good his boast, but he intended to trust to his instinct, which in the past had got him out of many a tight fix. It would no doubt help him in his present quest. He had the incentive of being morally certain that Prince Pozolevsky was the guilty man; he had felt it from the first moment, and his certainty had never been shaken. From the instant that he had heard of the refusal of the Russian to shake hands with the Englishman he had been suspicious. And the conclusion had been only logical. Lord Winston must have been a mortal enemy, for him so to slight him in public. Murder was but the next step.

And now it was up to Bruce Armstrong to find what had occurred in the past which had brought about so tragic a denouement to Lady Dorothy's house-party.

He chose a seat in the corner of a nearly-empty compartment, and continued to reflect on the matter, and plan his course of action. When the train drew in at London Bridge he had decided that the first step was to go to the Home Office, where he had an intimate friend. He would take the man into his confidence, and see what he knew about the Russian prince. This visit, consuming two hours, yielded little more than a few scant facts. But even these seemed startlingly significant to the explorer.

It appeared that, like so many Russian emigres, Prince Pozolevsky had been a man of power and wealth before the revolution. He had suffered under the Bolsheviks, and only after many hair-raising escapes had he been able to make his way to a refuge in England. His character, as far as was known, was above reproach. Armstrong gleaned further that since the prince's arrival in London he had made friends with many people of power and note in England. Above all, what interested Bruce Armstrong, and set him thinking hard, was when his friend at the Home Office had divulged the unexpected bit of information: "I believe, now you speak of it, that Lord Winston was in Russia, too, at the time of the revolution, a member of some commission sent out by the foreign office. I've heard—gossip only—that Prince Pozolevsky's wife ran off with Major Dudley, a great friend of Lord Winston's, you know, and I seem to have some vague recollection that Winston's name was mixed up with that affair in some way—I can give you a note to McSteirets at the foreign office, if you like, and you may be able to learn something from him."

The explorer's heart gave a leap. This was something like. He felt that at last he was on the right trail.

The outcome of this was that an arrangement was made for the explorer and the foreign office man to meet for lunch. So it was but natural that Armstrong's heart beat high with hope as he made his way up Whitehall towards his club, where they were to have luncheon.

While nothing definite, it was so much more than he had dared anticipate that he already imagined the look on Inspector Linscott's face when he should see him that night. He'd always said detective business was nothing but common sense plus nerve and persistence, and now he felt he was on the verge of proving this.

Prince Pozolevsky had made his grave mistake when he said: "Tchort poberi evo!"—not suspecting that he would be overheard or understood. The greatest criminals made inevitable slips, and that was where the Russian made his. Armstrong ruminated as he walked through busy Pall Mall on that fine June morning.

McSteirets was waiting for him when he arrived, and they at once adjourned to a tiny room where Armstrong had engaged a private table for two. He didn't want to run any chance of being interrupted or overheard.

"I'm afraid I'm going to be a disappointment," began McSteirets as soon as the waiter had served the hors-d'oeuvres and left them alone. "From what I gathered over the phone you wanted information to incriminate Prince Pozolevsky in this affair, and what I can tell you would seem to point quite the other way."

"I don't understand," Bruce Armstrong frowned darkly. "Didn't Princess Pozolevsky run away from her husband with Winston's friend, and didn't he aid and abet her in the elopement? That's what I gathered from my talk this morning."

"I know. But that's just what Winston didn't do! He was a stickler for conventions, honor and all that sort of thing, you know. Winston would never have let any woman, no matter how beautiful, lead him into a dishonorable act!"

"Um—Well, let me have your version, Mr. McSteirets, if I may," said the explorer, pouring out some wine for his companion. He then raised his glass. "To the finding of Lord Winston's murderer!" he toasted, and they both drank silently.

"A toast I can join you in with all my heart," said McSteirets, after a pause. "I only knew Winston slightly, but he was white clean through. Of that I'm certain!"

"Then why in the devil did Prince Pozolevsky refuse to shake his hand?"

"I think you may be making too much of that. It may not have been at all deliberate. Russians may not be in the habit of hand-shaking. At all events, you must allow for eccentricities."

"Even to calling upon the devil to take their friends, I presume," returned Armstrong sarcastically.

"Isn't it possible you misunderstood—?"

"It is not!" interrupted the explorer irritably. "I know Russian as well as I do English, and I distinctly heard him say 'Tchort poberi evo!' which means, 'The devil take him!'"

"Even so," was the smiling answer, "you've doubtless told many a man to go to the devil whom you wouldn't murder. It isn't enough

"Oh, I have something more! I can tell you in confidence, I think. The knife with which Lord Winston was murdered is monogrammed 'B. P.' Boris Pozolevsky fits nicely, you must admit."

McSteirets started. "I didn't know—I'm dashed sorry—that's all I can say—"

Armstrong looked narrowly at his companion, who was obviously troubled. For some minutes they ate in silence. Then the explorer leaned back in his chair and said:

"You haven't told me what you knew yet. I've done all the talking so far."

"It's very little I can tell you. It is true that Lord Winston was in Petrograd during the trouble of 1917-18, and it is also true that Prince Pozolevsky ran away with Major Dudley, leaving her husband in Russia, and in great danger. The prince is a conservative fellow. He's never mentioned the subject to anyone as far as I know. But as he didn't kill Major Dudley, against whom he certainly had the greater prevariance, I don't see why you should be so sure he was mixed up in this affair."

CHAPTER 27

When he came downstairs the next morning he found the explorer up before him, and pacing restlessly up and down the dew-laden garden.

"What do you mean to do about Prince Pozolevsky?" Armstrong asked abruptly as soon as the inspector was within earshot.

"Nothing for the moment, except have inquiries made into his past life."

"You intend to let him get away then?"

"Certainly not! But I can't arrest a man simply because his initials happen to correspond with those on the knife."

"I should think that, added to what came out at the inquest, would be quite enough to go on."

"Armstrong focused his piercing eyes on the inspector.

"I shall have to attend to my job as I see fit," replied the inspector a bit haughtily.

"Oh, it isn't that. Don't be offended! But if you aren't going to do anything, I am! You can't object to that."

"Certainly not, Mr. Armstrong. If you can bring any light to bear on the case I shall be pleased."

"You're sceptical, I see! Well, by night I shall hope to have something definite which will change your view."

"I wish you luck!"

Prince Armstrong looked calculatingly at the detective. He wasn't a bad fellow at all, he decided; only rather pig-headed. It was a case of the short-sighted vision of the civilized man against the far-seeingness of a savage, for the explorer, because of his years in the African jungles and his friendly associations with the natives, considered himself something of a savage.

"Well, let's have a friendly breakfast," he said good-humoredly. "Then I must bid me off to London."

"To call on his Royal Highness?" the inspector inquired with a hint of amusement.

"To find out about him."

"And you expect to have your incriminating information by night?"

"You think I'm crazy, don't you?" was the laughing rejoinder, as the men went into the breakfast-room. "Well, only remember, inspector, he laughs best who laughs last."

"I will remember," said the inspector quietly.

Breakfast was a silent, hurried affair, for the explorer had only ten minutes before he must leave for the station. He waved a jovial farewell to the detective, and settled himself back in the motor for the three miles to the station. He hadn't formed any very definite idea as to how to proceed to make good his boast, but he intended to trust to his instinct, which in the past had got him out of many a tight fix. It would no doubt help him in his present quest. He had the incentive of being morally certain that Prince Pozolevsky was the guilty man; he had felt it from the first moment, and his certainty had never been shaken. From the instant that he had heard of the refusal of the Russian to shake hands with the Englishman he had been suspicious. And the conclusion had been only logical. Lord Winston must have been a mortal enemy, for him to so slight him in public. Murder was but the next step.

And now it was up to Bruce Armstrong to find what had occurred in the past which had brought about so tragic a denouement to Lady Dorothy's house-party.

He chose a seat in the corner of a nearly-empty compartment, and continued to reflect on the matter, and plan his course of action.

When the train drew in at London Bridge he had decided that the first step was to go to the Home Office, where he had an intimate friend. He would take the man into his confidence, and see what he knew about the Russian prince.

This visit, consuming two hours, yielded little more than a few unexpected facts. But even these seemed startlingly significant to the explorer.

It appeared that, like so many Russian emigrants, Prince Pozolevsky had been a man of power and wealth before the revolution. He had suffered under the Bolsheviks, and only after many hair-raising escapes had he been able to make his way to a refuge in England.

His character, as far as was known, was above reproach. Armstrong gleaned further that since the prince's arrival in London he had made friends with many people of power and note in England. Above all, what interested Bruce Armstrong, and set him thinking hard, was when his friend at the Home Office had divulged the unexpected bit of information: "I believe, now you speak of it, that Lord Winston was in Russia, too, at the time of the revolution, a member of some commission sent out by the foreign office. I've heard—gossip only—that Prince Pozolevsky's wife ran off with Major Dudley, a great friend of Lord Winston's, you know, and I seem to have some vague recollection that Winston's name was mixed up with that affair in some way—I can give you a note to McSteirets at the foreign office, if you like, and you may be able to learn something from him."

The explorer's heart gave a leap. This was something like. He felt that at last he was on the right trail.

The outcome of this was that an arrangement was made for the explorer and the foreign office man to meet for lunch. So it was but natural that Armstrong's heart beat high with hope as he made his way up Whitehall towards his club, where they were to have luncheon.

While nothing definite, it was so much more than he had dared anticipate that he already imagined the look on Inspector Linscott's face when he should see him that night. He'd always said detective business was nothing but common sense plus nerve and persistence, and now he felt he was on the verge of proving this.

Prince Pozolevsky had made his grave mistake when he said: "Tchort poberi evo!"—not suspecting that he would be overheard or understood. The greatest criminals made inevitable slips, and that was where the Russian made his. Armstrong ruminated as he walked through busy Pall Mall on that fine June morning.

McSteirets was waiting for him when he arrived, and they at once adjourned to a tiny room where Armstrong had engaged a private table for two. He didn't want to run any chance of being interrupted or overheard.

"I'm afraid I'm going to be a disappointment," began McSteirets as soon as the waiter had served the hors-d'oeuvres and left them alone.

"I know. But that's just what Winston didn't do! He was a stickler for conventions, honor and all that sort of thing, you know. Winston would never have let any woman, no matter how beautiful, lead him into a dishonorable act!"

"Um—Well, let me have your version, Mr. McSteirets, if I may," said the explorer, pouring out some wine for his companion. He then raised his glass. "To the finding of Lord Winston's murderer!" he toasted, and they both drank silently.

"A toast I can join you in with all my heart," said McSteirets, after a pause. "I only knew Winston slightly, but he was white clean through. Of that I'm certain!"
